Beans and Fish Cakes Jealousy's Cockle Burrs Read, and Shudder Flying for the Navy

—By Arthur Brisbane—

MIAMI BEACH, FLA., March 28—Cyrus Herman Kotzschmar Curtis has spent his winters here for many years aboard his big yacht Lyndonia. From Miami he sails in the spring to his place at Camden, Me., near Portland, where he was born. Stopping on the way at Philadelphia, New York, Boston. The 38 men that man the yacht are kept busy and happy polishing the brass.

President Coolidge, asked how much such a yacht costs for upkeep. Mr. Curtis replied "it costs me nothing, my great-grandchildren pay for it." Meaning that he would not leave the great-grandchildren as much money as he would have left without the yacht.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis' luncheon on the Lyndonia yesterday included Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Fuller, who owned the Rockland Gazette, extremely agile triweekly newspaper. Also Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Shutts. They own the Miami Herald. Col. Shutts wishes the Miami Evening News would sell out to him. Governor Cox, who owns the Miami News, wishes Col. Shutt's Miami Herald would sell out to him, so neither will sell out.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis has nothing to wish for. Nineteen years ago with rare wisdom he turned over his periodical publications to Mr. Lorimer and other associates, saying "let's see what we can do with them." Confining his personal attention to daily newspapers.

Mr. Curtis, thin, very active, will be 82 years old next June.

While guests ate rich and beautiful food concoctions that looked as though they came from a jewelry shop, Mr. Curtis ate Boston baked beans with fish cakes.

The "Herman Kotzschmar" in Mr. Curtis' name is that of a musician who played the organ in the Portland church long ago. He wrote the music for Mr. Curtis' favorite hymn, "Softly Now the Light of Day Fades Upon My Sight Away."

Mr. Curtis' profits this past year are off about $8,000,000, dropping from $20,000,000 to $12,000,000, but that means to him nothing at all. If he continues to let the others do the worrying, and troublesome work, while he lives on his yacht, eating beans and fish cakes, the light of day will "not fade softly upon his sight away," for another score of years at least.

Jealousy is infinitely patient in its watching, its plans for confirming its worst suspicions, the ceaseless fury with which it lashes its own hatreds to their climax.

Truly the Bible says: "Jealousy is cruel as the grave, the coals thereof are coals of fire, which hath a most vehement flame."

A man accused of murder in Nashville, Tenn., suspected that something was wrong and put cockle burrs on the automobile seat of his neighbor, Edwin Wood. When he found some of these cockle burrs on his wife's coat he killed Edwin Wood, pleaded the "unwritten law." The jury deliberated 20 hours, could not agree.

What but bitter jealousy would suggest that cockle burr idea?

Milwaukee puzzles you. It is the best governed city in the United States, best in financial condition, with a police force that can't be bribed, and makes criminals so unwelcome that they never come.

That is a tribute to Victor L. Berger, who established the socialist government under which Milwaukee has kept solvent, accumulated money, discouraged crime and maintained honest government. How in the world do you explain that?

And now, for a good shudder.

Milwaukee proposes to establish a municipal bank, one that will pay legitimate banking interest, let you take out your money whenever you choose, and not blow up.

That's a terrible Bolshevistic suggestion, and the worst of it is that some other bankers can hardly criticise Milwaukee since this country has seen 6000 banks explode with loud reports within a short time, and would see more of them collapse if the government which, "detests anything like a dole," had not established a special dole fund of two thousand million dollars for corporations only.

It may interest you to know that a good many Americans are depositing money in Canadian banks, where it is working to build up our friends across the northern border.

Again our high-spirited financiers cannot complain with any good grace, in view of the fact that while we have thousands of bank failures in the United States, NOT ONE BANK HAS FAILED IN CANADA.

It is puzzling, but it is a fact,

QUESTIONED IN KIDNAPING

Betty Gruenler, 37, a nurse of Queensberry st., Back Bay, who surrendered early today on learning police sought her under the name of "Betty Gow." She denied being known by that name or having knowledge of the Lindbergh kidnaping. John B. ("War Bird") Marston, an aviator, also was sought. (Staff photo.)

MINISTER FLIES TO LINDY WITH KIDNAPERS' TERMS

TRIO INSISTS CLIMAX OF HUNT PLAN

Family Given the Demands of Baby Stealers and Promise of Quick Return

BULLETIN

Norfolk, Va., March 28 (AP)—John H. Curtis, one of the three negotiators, today announced the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock serving as an intermediary for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, left Norfolk by airplane at 11 o'clock this morning for Hopewell, N. J., to confer with Col. Lindbergh.

The Ledger-Dispatch said it was reliably reported that the minister or Curtis will possess the means of identifying the Lindbergh baby, as well as a definite plan for consummation of the negotiation for the return of the child, including the amount of ransom demanded by the kidnapers.

Asked if he believed the trip today would complete the negotiations for the child's return, Curtis said: "I never believe anything until it is completed." Today's conference with Col. Lindbergh would have an important bearing on the plans outlined by the Norfolk citizens, he said.

Trenton, N. J., March 28 (INS)—Recovery of the Lindbergh baby, kidnaped March 1, today may be a matter of a few days at the most.

The three Norfolk, Va., emissaries of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were to visit the Lindbergh home near Hopewell, N. J., today. One report had it that the $50,000 ransom money was flown by airplane to Norfolk and awaits the call of the kidnapers with the stolen child.

GIRL LOST IN RAGING GALE ON MOUNTAIN

Searching Parties Fail to Find Nordica Smith, a Nurse From Rutland Hospital

BULLETIN

Miss Nordica Smith, missing nurse, was found safe and unharmed at 4:30 o'clock this morning. After abandoning her automobile in a snow drift and trudging two miles.

Through the howling wind and rain for a today six searching parties started a frantic race to find a missing nurse, believed [illegible] injured on Mt. Wachusett.

The girl departed alone in her automobile from the Vermont Hospital at Rutland for her home and then vanished in the storm.

She is Miss Nordica Smith, 28, whose home is at 9 Willow st., Gardner.

Miss Smith left the Rutland hospital at 1.30 a. m. today to drive to Princeton, over the shoulder of Mt. Wachusett into Westminster and on to Gardner.

POLICE JOIN SEARCH.

Her mysterious absence was noted when her family called the hospital by telephone and asked that time she had departed.

Because of the storm, a searching party was immediately organized at the hospital, but failed to report after the first six hours of its search.

Six police of the Holden barracks then organized a searching party and another was formed at the Lunenberg barracks.

When word of the disappearance reached Gardner and Westminster other parties went out from there.

4 HURT IN LYNN FIRE BLAST

A 300-foot storage building of the Atlantic Wrecking Co. in Broad st., Lynn, was destroyed today in a $50,000 fire that injured four men and threatened the entire factory district along the Broad st. waterfront.

Seven automobile trucks, valued at $15,000, were saved by Officer Charles Humphreys and a force of workmen who drove them out of the burning end of the building just before the flames reached there.

Lashed by a 50-mile northeast gale and despite the deluge of rain carried by the gale, the flames roared through the shell-like one-story buildings, defying efforts of firemen, and necessitating a general alarm, which brought aid from P ver and Swampscott.

Raymond A. Hottinger, a Lynn city electrician, attempting to cut the current so that firemen might not be hampered, was blown across Broad st. by a hot-air explosion.

In the same explosion, Dr. Harold W. Crowell, a Central sq., Lynn, dentist, living at 164 Willow st., Nahant, was also blown across the street.

Lieut. William Nihan of the Lynn fire department stepped on a nail while fighting the fire, and it punctured his foot through his rubber boot, and Lieut. Henry Hayden of the same department was temporarily blinded when struck by a flying ember.

All four men were taken to Lynn Hospital.

"Congress Is Proceeding to Intensify the Depression," Says W. R. Hearst

[Reprinted from the Washington Herald of March 25.]

FELLOW CITIZENS, you think you have experienced a depression, but you have NOT. You have only seen the beginning of it.

Our estimable Representatives in Congress assembled are going to fix things so that the country will experience a REAL depression from now on.

They are going to increase the confiscatory provision of the income taxes.

MR. HOOVER has been urging the people not to hoard.

The public has been besought to spend money as freely as they can possibly afford.

Those with money have been advised if they have some repairing or building to do to do it NOW and so relieve unemployment.

They have been told if they need any clothing or furnishings or comforts or luxuries of any kind, to buy them NOW and stimulate trade.

We have been asked to turn in the old automobile and buy a new one.

We have been urged to patronize the shops and the theatres, to keep money in circulation and to maintain employment to the best of our means.

MOST OF US have tried to do this, but we cannot do it any longer. We have got to save every dollar from now on for the income tax collector, and for the fines and interest and assessments and injustices which he will impose.

We have got to cut down on the butcher and the baker and the candlestick maker.

We will have to use the old automobile and wear the old suits.

We will have to relinquish those pretty things at the shops that we would like to have for ourselves and the family.

We will have to get along with the old house and postpone the painting job for another year or two.

We will have to patch up the old furniture and dispense with all luxuries and even comforts.

We will have to give up some amusements and abandon that trip or vacation we had been intending to take with the "folks," and we will have TO SAVE

3 BANDITS GET $4500 IN CODMAN SQ. BANK

Employes Held at Bay as Two Loot the Cash Boxes and Third One Guards Door

Pictures on Page 8

Three gunmen robbed the Codman sq. branch of the Dorchester Savings Bank of between $4500 and $6000 today.

They escaped in a stolen car after a three-minute holdup during which the manager and two women employes were threatened by one bandit, while the others ripped telephone wires from the wall, looted the cash drawers of the teller's cages and kept an eye on the door.

Several thousand dollars in an open vault was overlooked by the robbers.

STORM AIDS HOLDUP

The robbery occurred a half hour after the bank had opened for business. The storm was at its height at the time and aided the bandit trio considerably.

The bank branch is at 570 Washington st., on the corner of Kenwood, and the robbers parked their car in Kenwood st. with its rear to Washington.

They stepped into the bank, drew weapons and ordered the three employes to "stick 'em up lively."

Elmer J. Smithies, the manager, of 4 Rosedale st., was sitting at a desk and the two women, Mrs. Helen Bishop of 63 Waldeck st. and Miss E. Gertrude Smith of 76 Pleasant st., were in the teller's cages. There were no customers.

CASH STUFFED INTO SACK

Smithies and the women were ordered into the rear of the office and held there at gunpoint by one bandit while the second ripped and cut out the wires and the third walked swiftly to the rear of the cages and proceeded to stuff currency into a sack.

It was a fast-moving drama and the robbers did not appear in the least concerned by the possibility of detection. The windows of the bank were curtained with rain and there were few pedestrians passing by.

The trio walked swiftly from the bank and Smithies made a break for the rear door. He reached it in time to see the bandits leap into

Raging Nor'easter Hits N.E.; Heavy Damage

Floods and washouts, freak accidents and disrupted schedules on land and sea caused thousands of dollars in damage today as a nor'east gale whipped the rain, snow and sleet into the worst storm in many years.

Storm warnings were ordered along the entire Atlantic seaboard when government weather observers saw no letup at least until late tonight.

It started with a light drizzle shortly after midnight, turned to snow and sleet and, in some sections, to rain again. Two inches of rain were recorded in some sections and well over an inch in Boston during the first few hours.

The Brookside rd. section of Braintree and a section in South Braintree became islands for a time when water filled the surrounding streets to the depth of a foot.

STREET CAVES IN

The fire department was called to stem the flow in both places and highway workmen were hurried to Brookside rd., when four sections of the street caved in.

Thirty-five telephone poles fell in Lowell, cutting off the service of 250 subscribers in Lowell, Westford and North Chelmsford.

A sign was torn from the roof of a two-story building in Merrimack st., in the heart of the business section. The section was roped off and traffic diverted.

Autoists in the Southern Artery, driving against the sweep of the sea as well as the rain, were forced to abandon their cars when ignitions became hopelessly drenched.

BOAT LANDING SWEPT AWAY

At Nantasket a boat landing of iron trestlework on Atlantic Hill was swept away and thrown on the beach by tide and wind.

Hundreds of umbrellas were whipped out of the hands of pedestrians even in the shielded city streets.

More than 100 passengers, homeward bound from the West Indies felt the gale aboard the steamer Lady Hawkins. Due to dock at 3 p. m., the steamer radioed she would be delayed several hours.

The New York to Boston steamer Robert E. Lee, with 150 aboard, docked at India wharf more than two hours late.

The Merchant & Miners steamer Juniata, Baltimore and Norfolk to Boston, made her dock on Northern ave. at 8:30, four hours late.

One of the freakiest accidents looked at first like a tragedy in Watertown.

A sedan was sighted half-buried in the water of the Charles River, near the Perkins Institute for the Blind. Firemen were called to the scene and frantically searched for bodies.

BLOWN INTO RIVER

An hour before, it developed, the sedan had been parked in the driveway of W. J. Wallace on Pequosette rd., Watertown.

Wallace, with a friend, Wallace Johnson of Brighton, had left Johnson's car in the Wallace driveway for a few minutes and the wind sent it across Charles River rd. into the river.

LIST OF THIRSTY KEPT SECRET

The names of hundredsof "customers" of the Newbury Club, alleged deluxe Back Bay speakeasy, were guarded in Federal court today when two men were held in $1000 for the grand jury on liquor charges.

Bernard Rodney of Williams st., Roxbury, and Samuel Rubin of Green st., Hartford, Ct., were held as alleged proprietors of the club.

The club was raided March 18 and assorted liquors, furnishings, a radio and other articles were seized. Two girl "customers" were allowed to go.

The membership list was carefully guarded but may be used in further court action, federal agents said.

Lynn Boys' Wet Pants Shrink When Dryer Gets Balky

A very important but embarrassing post-Easter note in nether drapes was sounded at Lynn English High School today when 80 boys who had arrived at school with exceedingly moist but nevertheless roomy pants were excused to dry their pants—and returned to classes wearing very dry pants, but pants startlingly shrunken and most uncomfortable.

Haw!

When the dripping youths arrived at school, Principal Frederick R. Willard suggested they go to the school laundry and give their uncomfortable garments into the big dryer which is an extraordinarily good dryer—and how're you?

The boys put their pants in the dryer okey, but then they couldn't stop it for 15 minutes. And when they did finally stop it, the boys who had been standing around in a lavish display of shorts, discovered that their pants were very short and tight—no longer roomy and collegiate, as you might say.

A good time was had by all the other pupils.

CAPONE ORDERS GANGS TO HUNT FOR BABY, IS REPORT

HIS AGENT IN UNDERWORLD PARLEY

Jersey Reports Big Racketeers Gathering to Map Plans; Fleischer Dodges Police

Detective "Sure" Baby Will Return

Norfolk, Va., March 28 (AP)—Norfolk police have assumed a hands-off policy in the Lindbergh case, although Chief S. W. Ironmonger told the Associated Press today he was aware negotiations were underway and that two of his men were assigned to the case.

One of these, Leon Nowitsky, a detective, said he believed the negotiations would reach a happy conclusion despite what he termed "premature" publicity, and that the Lindbergh baby would be returned.

Trenton, N. J., March 28 (INS)—Rumors are current in Trenton today that big city racketeers from coast to coast are gathering here to discuss means of returning the kidnaped Lindbergh baby to his parents.

It is reported the racketeers are under "orders" from Al Capone, who is in jail in Chicago, to confer with his lieutenant, Ted Newberry, when the latter sets a time.

Newberry's whereabouts are not known. It is said he has been in Trenton. Four other gangsters from Buffalo, Toledo and San Francisco are supposed to be in Trenton now.

According to the rumor, Newberry will issue orders to various underworld leaders to have their respective cities combed for criminals who might have the baby in their possession or who could provide a lead.

STILL HUNT GANGSTERS

Ignoring seemingly significant developments at Norfolk, Va., where intermediaries were reported to be in contact with the kidnapers, Norman Schwarzkopf, in his official statement to the press today, emphasized the efforts of the police to find a Harry Fleischer, reputed leader of the "Purple Gang" of Detroit, and Abe Wagner of New York's lower East Side.

Schwarzkopf, who is superintendent of the New Jersey state police, has in previous statements described Fleischer and Wagner as "known kidnapers."

"The search for Harry Fleischer and Abie Wagner is being continued," said Schwarzkopf. "Many police departments are working independently on this and have not reported their progress to us.

NOT 'IN' ON BOSTON CASE

"The request of the Newark police made to the Boston authorities, regarding the arrest of a nurse and an aviator is evidently an independent investigation. No information concerning this has been forwarded to us."

Advices from Boston had also stated the police would conduct an intensive search in the Beilingham section of Chelsea for Fleischer, who was reported in hiding in that vicinity.

"Investigations of the 'Purple Gang' are being conducted all over the country," Schwarzkopf's statement concluded. "Most of these are independent investigations conducted by local police who are not making any reports to us of their activities or findings.

"Investigators are now out checking up on information received and continuing investigations started but not completed."

Gen. Sandino Sick; Hiding in Salvador

Mexico City, March 28 (AP)—Reports to the Salvadorean Legation here today quoted the newspaper "Diario Latino" of Salvador as saying Gen. Cesar Augusto Sandino, Nicaraguan insurgent leader, was seriously ill with malaria and had crossed to Salvador where he is in retirement under a doctor's care.

He was traveling incognito, the paper was quoted as saying, as Juan Gonzales Guerra.

GRANDAUNT OF BABY ASHAMED OF THE U. S.

Mrs. Scandrett, Sister of Late Dwight Morrow, Aghast That the Kidnaping Should Occur

Bearing toys and presents from abroad for Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., Mrs. Agnes Morrow Scandrett, grandaunt of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, in Boston today declared herself "ashamed" of a country in which such a tragedy could occur.

Mrs. Scandrett, sister of the late Senator Dwight Morrow and widow of Atty. Richard Scandrett, of Pittsburgh, spent last night in Franklin, waiting for the steamer Exarch to resume her journey to New York late today or tomorrow.

ABSOLVES SERVANTS

Before the grandaunt of the Lindbergh baby learned of the kidnaping she bought presents and toys for him in Constantinople, she said.

"I was terribly ashamed of my country when I learned in Genoa that the baby had been stolen," Mrs. Scandrett declared. "I don't believe that in any other nation a child could be kidnaped out of its crib at night and kept from its parents as long as Ann's baby has been missing."

Mrs. Scandrett said that she could think of no one depraved enough to kidnap the child.

"I feel sure that no one connected with Col. Lindbergh's household had anything to do with the case," she said. "I know Betty Gow, the baby's nurse, very well and she was devoted to the child. The other servants in the house are also above suspicion.

SYMPATHY EVERYWHERE

"At every port at which we stopped the greatest sympathy was expressed for the parents of the baby and all nationalities agree in condemning this terrible thing. It is not possible for me to tell you how badly this has made me feel, for you see he was the only baby in the family."

Mrs. Scandrett saw Baby Lindbergh a few days before sailing for Constantinople on November 5 to visit her sister, Miss Alice Morrow, librarian in the preparatory division of the American College there.

EVERY DOLLAR TO GIVE TO GOVERNMENT.

Congress has made saving not only a habit but a necessity.

Congress has made hoarding COMPULSORY.

SMART BOYS, those radical Congressmen of ours!

They are going to have the country lift itself right out of its troubles by its boot straps.

Clever chaps, those disciples of Lenin and Stalin in the government at Washington!

They are going to tax the country into prosperity.

They are going to make the country wealthy by stopping the spending of money.

They are going to improve business by decreasing business.

They are going to relieve unemployment by relieving those that are now employed of their jobs.

They are going to give all the money to the government, so that the only people who will have any jobs will be government employees.

IF after the tax collectors turn your pockets inside out, nobody has any money to build with, how are the building trades going to keep employed?

If nobody has any money left to spend at the shops, how are the clerks and sales people to keep employed?

If the shops cut down orders from the factories, how are the factory hands going to keep their jobs?

If the factories cut down the orders for raw materials, how are the farmers going to dispose of their products?

If nobody has any money to buy automobiles, what is to become of the automobile industry and its employees?

If nobody has any money to patronize the theatres, what is to become of the amusement enterprises and their employees?

If nobody does any business nor does any advertising, what is to become of the publishing business and its employees?

And if no buying is done, and no business is done, and no profits are made, how in hallelujah is the government going to collect profit taxes, and income taxes?

OH, YES, you are quite right, I have a personal interest in the matter,—AND SO HAVE YOU.

Prosperity makes everybody prosperous, and depression makes everybody depressed; uninformed legislators and unscientific legislation make every bad situation worse.

Of course, we can all do courageously and even cheerfully whatever we are called upon to do.

We can all stop buying the things we want, and even some of the things we need.

We can all stop spending money, and hoard it, and surrender it to the government.

We are all "fellow citizens."

We are all in the same big boat, and it is called the United States of America.

If it rains we all get wet.

If it storms we all get sick.

If we have fools for a crew, we are likely to have a rather disagreeable passage, and maybe a dangerous one.

DON'T YOU THINK we should look over the crew carefully and see if we cannot make some improvements in the personnel at the next election?

Don't you think conditions call for a pretty competent captain, and a pretty intelligent and reliable and well disciplined crew?

Just remember that the good old boat is rocking a good deal, and the captain doesn't seem to know how to steer the course, and the crew doesn't seem to know how to set the sails.

Some pretty short-sighted tax legislation is being passed at Washington, but the prosperity loan to relieve unemployment has not yet been passed, and is not likely to be.

Our star-spangled Representatives at Washington are not interested in diminishing unemployment. They are only interested in increasing it.

Lindbergh Clues Sought on Ships

Hopewell, N. J., March 28 (INS)—Reports of babies resembling the missing Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., 21 months old, seen on vessels leaving New York continue to be investigated, so far without results.

Hundreds of letters from cranks pretending to be the kidnapers were received at the Lindbergh home.

Two women approaching the Lindbergh estate with a map, which they claimed showed where the stolen baby was held, were interrogated by detectives. The indicated house already had been searched twice.

CLERIC SAYS RETURN OF BABY IS NEAR

today, the Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, dean of Christ Episcopal Church of Norfolk, told of the strong hopes of consummating negotiations with the kidnapers soon.

MINISTER OPTIMISTIC

He was called soon after John Hughes Curtis, shipbuilder, returned to Norfolk after a secret trip, reputedly to make another contact with the abductors.

"I am very optimistic Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., will be in our hands, or that of his parents, soon," Dr. Dobson-Peacock said.

"It may be a couple of days, or even sooner, but I am certain the baby will be returned safe.

"Weather permitting, we will fly this morning to Hopewell to confer with Col. Lindbergh."

He refused to answer questions regarding the ransom, if any was demanded by the kidnapers, who since the appearance of the Norfolk negotiators are believed to be holding the baby on a boat in some inlet in or near the dismal swamps of Chesapeake Bay.

MAY RETURN TONIGHT

Curtis said this afternoon that Dean Peacock planned to return to Norfolk by tonight if weather conditions did not disrupt the flying schedule.

"The Rev. Dr. Peacock left here in a navy plane at about 11 a. m. for Hopewell to confer with Col. Lindbergh," said Curtis. "I do not know at what pacific field he will land.

"He is trying to renew and complete negotiations started some time ago and broken off temporarily as a result of publicity.

"I tried to reestablish them when I was away last Saturday.

"Dr. Peacock hopes to complete the reopening of the negotiations."

FINDS PHONE LEAK

Curtis added that he would not know the result of the minister's discussions with Lindbergh until Dr. Peacock returned to Norfolk.

He pointed out that a telephone leak had been discovered in the 21-minute conversation via phone between himself and Colonel Lindbergh a week ago and that as a result the three emissaries had decided not to use the telephone again.

Curtis said that he and Admiral Burrage had decided that one representative would accomplish as much as three and that Dr. Peacock was therefore delegated to confer with the noted father of the missing babe.

ON LAND OR SEA

Under normal flying conditions the minister should reach the vicinity of Hopewell in about three hours, or about 2 o'clock. Due to the low ceiling and bad weather, however, it was not expected that he would reach his destination before four hours or even longer.

The flight to Hopewell of a member of the negotiating trio of prominent Norfolk citizens strengthened the hope that the Lindbergh infant might be homeward bound sometime this week, as expressed by Dean Peacock.

Whether the purported kidnapers with whom the Lindbergh representatives were supposed to be dealing were on land or sea remained undisclosed.

In his mystery mission, Curtis was said to have used a plane. When the Norfolk trio was first reported to be bartering with the kidnapers, last week, the story went out that the baby-stealers were on a boat in Chesapeake bay.

Meanwhile, coast guard patrols continued to watch out for all suspicious craft in the region.

If indications here are of any value, Col. Lindbergh feels that the Norfolk go-betweens may be on the track leading to recovery of his son at last. Their decision to again call on him in his Mountain Mountain home came immediately after a telephone call received from Curtis.

EXPECTS ACTION

It came too, hard on Curtis' return from a mysterious 33-hour journey. He left here about 7 a. m. Saturday by air for an unknown destination and returned about 5 p. m. Sunday, worn and tired. He said he had no sleep while away. After receiving a telephone call he issued this brief statement:

"We will confer with Lindbergh personally tomorrow."

Curtis told International News Service he expected a "definite development" in the negotiations within the next three or four days.

Further than this he would not commit himself. Asked if he was now convinced of the authenticity of the agents with whom he is dealing, the boat builder said:

"That is a pretty broad assertion."

Concerning his trip, Curtis issued the following general statement:

"In order to do certain work in carrying out matters started several days ago before breaking off the publicity regarding our trip to Hopewell, it was necessary for me to leave town to accomplish this.

"As to where, how or to whom I talked, I am not in a position to state at this time. I left early Saturday morning and returned this afternoon."

Curtis had not shaved while he was gone, and this was the first thing he did upon his return.

He then called in the Rev. Peacock, and the two were closeted for an hour or more. Peacock remained for dinner at the Curtis home, leaving when the host builder came to notify newspaper men of his decision to call on Lindbergh today. Curtis returned to his home at 11 p. m. for a spell of obviously much needed rest.

Peacock has done little talking since Curtis returned here.

DAY OF WAITING

He offered a brief prayer for the speedy and safe return of the Lindbergh baby at his 10:30 services in Christ's Episcopal Church earlier in the day. During the afternoon he sounded a plea for the return of the infant through sound motion pictures. Curtis also talked briefly for sound pictures.

Whatever fate is in store for the negotiations being carried on through Norfolk men, it appeared that another period of waiting was on hand today. The three men engaged as agents for the Lindberghs have continually warned that the mission is a highly delicate one, and deplored publicity, which has already marked their progress.

Although the Lindberghs themselves in some quarters were reported highly elated over the prospects of the Norfolk lead, police remained skeptical of its value, at least in official bulletins.

"Col. Lindbergh has no knowledge of developments at Norfolk as outlined in your message query," Capt. A. J. Lamb, of the New Jersey State Police, answered reporters who asked him regarding the activities in Virginia.

"As previously stated, he does not believe the information at Norfolk is of specific significance in the case."

H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of police, professed ignorance concerning this phase of the hunt for the kidnapers.

"No reports have been received from any Virginia or Maryland authorities as to any investigation they may be conducting in connection with this case," his communique stated.

Lindberghs Spend Easter Quietly

Hopewell, N. J., March 28 (INS)—The Lindberghs spent Easter Sunday quietly without receiving visitors, excepting Mrs. Lindbergh's mother, and Colonel and Mrs. Henry Breckinbridge, who spent the day at the Hopewell estate.

Mrs. Agnes Morrow Scandrett, aunt of Mrs. Lindbergh, planned to start from Boston for New Jersey today. She arrived from abroad yesterday. She brought with her from her foreign trip many toys for the baby, having bought them before she received news of the child's abduction.

and therefore should be mentioned.

Miami is a city of airports, greatest flying city of America, although Oakland, Los Angeles and San Diego, California, might dispute that.

The writer visited three of the airports yesterday, including the municipal airport used as a flying base by the navy.

On the ground with its propeller roaring and its wheels arranged to draw up inside in flight its body to reduce air resistance stood a "Lockheed Altair."

This monoplane, very low, with short wings, black striped with gold, looked on the ground and in flight much like the "carpenter bumble bee," that you may have seen boring holes in the pine wood of a corn crib.

A Wright Cyclone 575 horsepower engine turns the propeller around 1700 times a minute, at cruising speed, 2000 at high speed. Lieut.-Comdr. C. M. Dillon, climbed in, put on his parachute, regulations require it, and his assistant, McLaren, third class machinist's mate, climbed in behind him and put on his parachute.

The giant bumble bee, buzzing more violently, ran down the runway slowly kicking up the dust, turned around and came back, more rapidly now and was gone, at more than 200 miles an hour.

Leaving Miami at noon, the plane landed in Washington, D. C. at about 5:15 p. m. Lieut.-Comdr. Dillon had improved on the navy aircraft record for that flight. It was his own record.

When he left, he held in his hand a slip of paper which told him that rising about 6000 feet in the air, he would find a wind that would push him towards Washington and probably raise the speed about 20 miles an hour. The upper air and its currents at various heights are mapped out precisely every day. We do some things, even if we cannot balance our budget.

It was a pleasure to see that young flier of the American navy take off with his competent mechanic, and a pleasure to see the young men that run that naval air base for Uncle Sam, Lieut. Joseph B. Lynch, commanding officer; Lieut. Thomas B. Southworth, executive officer; J. Gordon Adams, commander of the marine aviation division, and their amoitious mechanics.

They have broad shoulders, clear eyes, strong chins, waists that cave in, instead of sticking out.

There are a million more like them in the United States ready to learn flying.

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Income tax collections from the first quarter payments on 1931 income for March 25 were $1,076,000 as compared with $3,280,517 for the comparative day a year ago.

For the month, the taxes amounted to $188,941,065 as compared with $327,265,376 last March. Fiscal year collections amount to $848,062,408 as compared to $1,498,696,401 for the preceding year.

Mrs. Longworth and Paulina Guarded

Atlantic City, N. J., March 28 (INS)—Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and her daughter, Paulina, are here apparently under the care of two guards. They are stopping at the Ritz-Carlton, and whenever they go outside are accompanied by the men.

Last week the widow of the former Speaker received a threat that her child would be kidnaped, it was reported.

600 VOTES FOR ROOSEVELT CLAIMED

By LOUIS SEIBOLD

New York, March 28 (US)—A fairly comprehensive survey of Democratic presidential prospects at present defines the issue as between Gov. Roosevelt and a field comprising a dozen or more aspirants whose supporters believe Roosevelt should not be nominated.

The major problem in the dispute between the leaders in all groups immediately concerns the effort of Roosevelt's supporters to go into the convention with a majority.

If the Roosevelt maneuver should succeed, his supporters would unquestionably move to set aside the two-thirds rule.

CLAIMS 600 VOTES

With the two-thirds rule out of the way, the Roosevelt managers confidently assert his nomination would follow. The question, therefore, resolves itself into this:

Will Mr. Roosevelt be able to control the votes of 578 of the 1154 delegates in the nominating convention?

There are two answers to the question.

James A. Farley, field manager for Roosevelt, contends that his candidate will show up with 600 votes, also that the Governor will be nominated on the first ballot.

It is most significant that Frank Hague, commander-in-chief of the anti-Roosevelt forces and one of the most experienced and resourceful leaders in the country, places the number of delegates who will oppose Roosevelt at more than 600 votes.

678 VOTES AGAINST

The anti-Roosevelt checkers flatly dispute the claim of the New York Governor's managers regarding the distribution of the delegate votes of several states.

Reduced to concrete figures the alignment of states that are counted upon to resist the New York Governor is as follows:

Alabama, 24; California, 44; Connecticut, 18; Delaware, 6; Illinois, 58; Indiana, 30; Iowa, 26; Kentucky, 26; Louisiana, 20; Maine, 6; Maryland, 16; Massachusetts, 36; Missouri, 36; New Jersey, 32; New York, 94; North Carolina, 26; Ohio, 52; Oklahoma, 22; Rhode Island, 10; Texas, 46; Virginia, 24; Wisconsin, 26; a total of 678 votes or 98 more than a majority, but 53 1-3 votes less than the number required to nominate under the two-thirds rule.

FR. COUGHLIN TALKS TO WOMEN

An Exclusive Evening American Series on Love, Marriage, the Home

Tells Kind of Wife Man Desires

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American. All Rights Reserved.

Royal Oak, Mich., March 28 —"If I were free to marry——"

Father Charles E. Coughlin, America's Shepherd of the Air and the country's most daring apostle of truth, sat back in his Crucifixion Tower office chair and told his views on women.

"If I were free to marry," the beloved pastor of the parish Shrine of the Little Flower continued, "I wouldn't marry a girl who continually tickles her palate with cocktails or whose chief interest in life is sitting at the north, south, east and west ends of a bridge table."

Father Coughlin has a definite social philosophy on woman. It is a doctrine that he will tell you with his customary fearlessness and conviction, exalts and reveres woman. That places her on a pedestal, demanding man's respect and worship, and as God intended, to serve as his inspiration—nothing more.

"If women has lost man's adoration with her attempt at self-expression, her glory in emancipation, her denial of the natural law of God and religion, her syncopated, night club attitude toward love and marriage, her acceptance of divorce as a short-cut to happiness, woman has not alone suffered, it is the world's tragedy.

Woman the Loser
She Lowered Herself to Man's Level

She has bargained for equality, an equality that should never exist between man and woman, an equality that has brought her down to man's level.

"In her quest for independence, woman has undermined her own safety."

"Woman primarily belongs in the home," Father Coughlin went on. "And for her, the production of children should be the greatest achievement. Women are psychologically different from men. Not much, mind you, but, nevertheless, different.

"Women have finer passions, finer appreciation of beauty, finer depths of love. Herein lie her power and influence. Would that she realized her true and infinite worth and made more of these endowments!

"God never intended that she should usurp man's throne in industry and mercantile pursuits."

Father Coughlin was the practical philosopher as he outlined woman's position in the world.

He talked of marriage that is tottering as an institution; divorce that is ruining marriage and sweeping the country; woman who has no place in politics; woman who needs no career; the younger generation that is disdaining her motherhood of tomorrow; bachelor girls whom he refuses to recognize; and the irreligious wave that has taken its toll of the family and robbed the country of genuine family life.

Words of Wisdom
Woman, Hearing, Bows in Abject Accord

"Woman has no place on man's level. She belongs above it," he spoke positively. "When I no longer can look up to woman; when I no longer can consider her better than myself, I don't want to be with her. I want to run away from her."

There have been men who have ruminated at great length on woman's influence, her contribution to the economic and social forces that motivate man and universe, but never before has any man, of the laity or of the cloth, spoken with such rational conviction and forceful simplicity as did Father Coughlin.

He sat back and chatted—easily, pleasantly, with praise and condemnation. And I listened. And I, a woman, in abject acquiescence, bowed with guilty head to his indictment.

In a complete departure from those topics on which he has broadcast and which have brought to him national acclaim and distinction, Father Coughlin for the Boston Evening American, in a series of exclusive interviews, has bared on the remedial cure—woman.

"She is the light and the salvation."

To Father Coughlin, woman's influence is inestimable. And that is easy to understand. His mother is a sweet, cheerful woman, whose goodness of soul, whose shining grace of character is revealed in a maternal mien of contentment and rest, of calm and peace.

Father Coughlin is a handsome man. He is close to 40 but looks 10 years younger. He is fastidious in dress and fine looking in appearance. He has a healthy, wholesome face that lights up when he speaks. His eyes are soft and lovely.

Of Bootleg Love
Are Women Losing Out in Fast Moving Times?

He has a robust physique and is of good stature. His countenance is that of the scholar, bespectacled and intellectual.

To watch him is to believe him.

And so we talked.

He smiled at first when I placed my feminine queries before him, queries pertinent to the life and happiness of women.

"Yes, Father, but what about the country's women?" I persisted. "What part is theirs to play in the great scheme of things today? In a ruling country that withdrawals its own hypocrisies of beliefs and actions?

"Are the women losing out?

"Is their emancipation a detriment to their future?

"Must we return to the good old-fashioned femininity?

"Can women countenance divorce and retain safety?

"Is bootleg love on the skids with bootleg liquor?

"Can women continue to cabaret through life with a song, a dance and a drink?

Father Coughlin was questioned on many more vital feminine problems and for all he was ready with well-defined, well-planned answers.

He smiled as he volunteered:

"You must remember that I have only studied women impersonally."

She's Inspiration
And She Always Will Be Man's Chief Desire

And then he struck a serious pose. He waited for a moment. Then he became the thinker, the profound scholar, as he knitted his high forehead and replied:

"Woman is man's inspiration. She always was and always will be. She must be. She exalts men to great achievement. She lowers them to great depths. Without woman there would never be glorious endeavor.

"Men go to war for women. They fight for women to protect them. They work for them and their children. They slave for them. They die for them.

"Women can do more to conquer the beast in man with beauty than with brains. And I don't mean drugstore beauty. I mean that beauty which comes from within—the beauty of soul. That charming loveliness of grace and gentleness.

"Women can do more with the gentleness of their voice, than 10,000 armies with swords. They can sway nations with their softness. That is woman's part.

"We want women to have education. We don't want them to be engineers or pilots or other such fanciful things. But we want them versed in the fundamentals of arts. We want their minds to be filled with fresh ideas and their souls filled universally with love.

Virgin No Preacher
As Apostle of Goodness She Paved the Way

"The Blessed Virgin was no preacher of sermons. But she was an apostle of goodness. As Jesus preached His doctrine of Christianity, to you and to me, it appears that the Blessed Virgin was in the background. But to Jesus she was always in the foreground. She was His inspiration.

"It has been said that always is there a woman in the case. That is vulgarly worded, but true in sentiment. Why? Because woman has this influence over man, on that there is no denying. She has influence over the man-child; she should have influence over the man-husband.

"Women who are honest with themselves will not deny that their ultimate hope is for a home of their own with children and a husband on whom to exercise the greatest of impulses—motherlove with its affection and protection and inspiration.

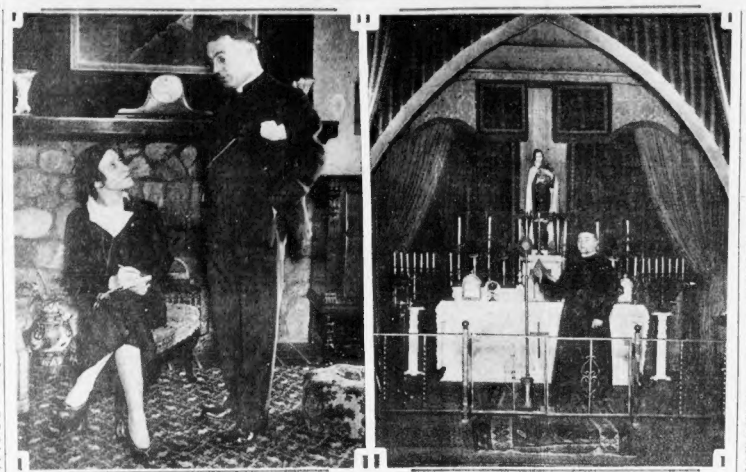
"That is the divine right of every woman. And if the Industrial age, this mechanistic world, has robbed woman of her heritage, it is because she has not fought hard enough to retain it."

Father Coughlin paused for a moment. He looked through cubicle window openings that on the outside carry the sculptured scrolls of the Crucifixion Tower, which some day will blaze for the world the beacon of his radio church.

He watched my reaction. I spoke and then he began again.

This time about marriage, and the pseudo interest with which women who are accepting the institution which they fail to recognize was organized for their protection.

(In Tomorrow's American, Father Coughlin will advise women how to select their husbands and on what basis to place their future security.)



Father Charles E. Coughlin, who speaks to women through a series of articles beginning in the Boston Evening American today, is shown expounding his views to Miss Ruth Mugglebee, of the American staff, in his study at Royal Oak, Mich.

From the altar at the Shrine of the Little Flower, Fr. Coughlin is shown addressing one of his radio sermons across the country. In a series of articles, beginning in this paper today, Fr. Coughlin gives his views on women and their problems.

Overwork Blamed for Doctor's Death

St. Louis, Mo., March 28 (US)—Overwork today was blamed for the apparent suicide of Dr. Daniel W. Lappincott, 36, son of Prof. Isaac Lappincott of Washington University, nationally known economist.

Dr. Lappincott's body was found 300 yards from the entrance of Cliff Cave, ten miles south of St. Louis, a pistol by nearby. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of suicide.

Tramp Held in Death of Arkansas Co-ed

Eldorado, Ark., March 28 (AP)—The death of a 20-year-old college co-ed, characterized as suicide on the coroner, will be investigated Wednesday by a special grand jury called to consider the confession of a tramp that he attacked and killed the girl.

A murder charge has been made against the tramp, Ervin Eddington, 28, who, authorities say, is demented. The body of Miss Jackie Ruth Youngblood, senior at Magnolia A. & M. College, was found Friday night.

Management Expert to Address Ad Club

Harry A. Hopf, founder of H. A. Hopf & Co., for many years engaged in solving industrial problems, will address the Advertising Club of Boston at its weekly luncheon tomorrow, at Hotel Statler.

Hopf, formerly vice president of the Insurance Institute of Hartford, later became head of the Organization Council of the United States Federal Reserve System. At one time he was a member of the faculty of Columbia University, where he still lectures.

Shot From Ambush May Blind Dry Agent

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Firing from ambush on a prohibition enforcement automobile, which may result in blindness of a young federal agent, was termed "an outrage" in the weekly official bulletin for the enforcement personnel.

The publication said Harvey F. Grass suffered lacerations of both eyeballs when he and two others were fired on while driving to investigate seizure of a still at Unionville, Ill.

Woman's Assailant Given 3-Month Term

Sentence of three months in the House of Correction was imposed today on Morrie De Grothe, 37, of Derna st., West End, found guilty of assaulting Mary Petano, 35, of Lark st., South Boston, who rejected him in favor of another man.

De Grothe, she testified, blacked both her eyes, slashed her cheek with a razor and kicked her.

"Ex-Pitcher" Held as Thief Suspect

Los Angeles, March 28 (INS)—Police today arrested Frank Stark, 35, who said he was a pitcher for the Detroit baseball team in 1922, and Vincent O'Connor, on suspicion of burglary. Police said the pair possessed a package containing new shoes.

CAPONE RANKS FACE REVOLT

Chicago, March 28 (AP)—Reports were current today that all is not well within the ranks of the gang of Al Capone.

They had it that a revolt has been started by some members to prevent Frank Nitti, the reputed "enforcer" of Capone's orders, from taking charge of the syndicate while Capone is in jail as an income tax law violator.

Nitti recently returned from the Leavenworth penitentiary, after serving 15 months for a tax law violation.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner said Murray Humphries had been leading the revolt and mentioned that it was possible open warfare might result.

GANDHI BALKS HOPE OF PEACE

Bombay, March 28 (AP)—All hopes for peace between Mahatma Gandhi and Viceroy Lord Willingdon were dashed today on the arrival here of Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, president of the National Congress, who last week was reported making an effort to patch up differences between the two.

"Our only spokesman competent to negotiate when the time comes," she said, "is Mahatma Gandhi himself. No one else is authorized to make or accept any gesture toward negotiations. In the meantime all other Nationalists have only one duty and that is to pursue loyally the ideals and mandate of the Congress."

Mrs. Naidu said she had discussed informally and unofficially the possibility of an agreement with the viceroy but that there was "not the slightest inclination on the part of the government toward peace and everything pointed to a prolonged struggle."

Famous Polo Pony, My Girl, Destroyed

Los Angeles, March 28 (AP)—My Girl, internationally known 15-year-old polo pony, was destroyed today after having suffered a broken leg in a game between the Hurricanes and Midwick. She was owned by Stephen ("Laddie") Sanford.

The Hurricanes defeated Midwick, 11 to 10. Will Rogers, the humorist, shot the winning goal.

Slapstick Comedies Still Rule Favorites of Screen

Hollywood, Cal., March 28 (AP)—Modern prototypes of the Keystone cop and his pie-throwing gang, who made their debut when films were in their infancy, are favorites of the screen, a nationwide survey indicates.

Running the slapstick comedians a close second are the heroes and heroines of the "thrill pictures" based on mystery plays and detective stories.

Then comes travel pictures and films of explorations. Western pictures have lost but little of their popularity.

H. L. Mencken, describing himself as a casual movie-goer, wrote "If I had to go to the movies regularly, I think I would prefer low comedy to anything else; after that travel pictures."

Wild life and exploration films are the choice of Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Pinchot prefers "satirical comedy."

Domestic comedies reveal humor in household affairs, otherwise taken too seriously, thinks William Jennings Bryan, Jr.; Irving S. Cobb, humorist, finds his greatest thrill in melodrama.

The animated cartoon is a favorite of William Allen White, Emporia, Kan., editor; Gen. Hugh S. Scott likes "adventure stories of Western frontier days"; Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson, radio scientist, voted for adventure and mystery films; "thrilling sea stories" are preferred by Bernard M. Baruch, while Prof. E. W. Kemmerer of Princeton likes adventure films.

Edward A. Filene of Boston finds "motion pictures are now a great force and can help the orderly progress of our country as well as entertain."

Many Priests at Fr. Porta's Funeral

Springfield, March 28 (AP)—Hundreds of members of the Catholic clergy, including many representatives of the Stigmatini order attended the funeral of Rev. Anthony Dalla Porta today in the Church of Our Lady of Mt. Carmel, which he founded and of which he was first pastor. He died a week ago in Waltham, where he was a director of the Student's House of the order.

Ex-Mayor, Police and "Vice Lord" Jailed

Detroit, March 28 (INS)—Dr. Rudolph G. Tenerowicz, reputed mayor of Hamtramck, Mich., and three co-defendants, found guilty of vice conspiracy, were sentenced to three and one half years each by Judge Ferguson today.

Tenerowicz, police Captain Joseph Rupinski and Jacob Kaplan, alleged "vice lord" of the Polish community, were also fined $2000 each, but Prosecutor Harry Wurmuskerken was not fined because he has three children.

Maine Democrats to Be Uninstructed

Portland, Me., March 28 (INS)—Indications today were that delegates to be named tomorrow to the Democratic national convention would be unpledged. The State convention will open at 7:30 p. m. and will adjourn Wednesday night.

The Republicans will gather here Thursday and adjourn Friday. The G. O. P. delegation will be strong for Hoover, it is expected.

Aged Rabbi Is Dead

Jerusalem, March 28—Rabbi Chaim Sonnenfeld, 83, leader of the extreme Orthodox Jewish organization, Agudath Israel, is dead here.

DOWD RENEWS WAR ON MAYOR

City Councillor Dowd of Roxbury continued his "war" on Mayor Curley today when he appeared before the legislative committee on municipal finance to oppose the mayor's program for borrowing $20,000,000 outside the debt limit for street widenings.

Dowd also criticized Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of Boston Finance Commission, for his "silence in connection with city land takings." He approved of the borrowing, but within the debt limit, of money for school houses, City Hospital program and construction of streets and sewers.

"Pawtucket Johnny" P.O. Robber, Indicted

Providence, R. I., March 28 (AP) "Pawtucket Johnny" Conley, notorious postoffice robber and yeggman, was among the 113 defendants indicted by a Providence county grand jury today. The panel reported 15 indictments.

Mrs. Marie Angechiniere of Woonsocket, charged with attempting to murder her estranged husband, Adelard Jan. 22, was among 16 defendants against whom no bills were returned.

JURY DISAGREES ON STRONG WILL

Salem, March 28—A disagreement was reported today in a sealed verdict in the $25,000 contest on the will of Mrs. Maude E. Strong, wealthy Lynn divorcee.

Counsel for both sides immediately made motions for a new trial. A hearing will take place next week on the motions.

The contest was begun by relatives of Mrs. Ella Holland of Springfield, an aunt, who was cut off in the will, the bulk of the estate going to Mrs. Strong's 70-year-old uncle, Hiram Lurvey of Lynn. It carries a proviso that Mrs. Agnes Perusse of that city, her nurse, receive the money upon his death.

CHILDREN SAVE DAD FROM JAIL

The eight children of Thomas Breanahan, 44, of Melrose st., South End, saved him from a jail sentence today when he pleaded guilty in municipal court to a charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

Four gallons of moonshine and 25 gallons of beer were seized on Breanahan's premises by police of Lagrange st. station, it was testified.

After his guilty plea, he told Judge Murray that he had been out of work five months and had to do something to keep his children from starving.

"Well," said Judge Murray, "I can't send you to jail because the children will suffer more than you, and I certainly am not going to be responsible for their starving. I guess we'll place you on probation for six months and you better find something that it is legal to sell."

Reed "Instructions" Opposed in Missouri

St. Louis, March 28 (AP)—The State Democratic convention, meeting here today, stood ready to endorse former Senator James A. Reed for the presidency, but there were prospects of a bitter fight over instruction for him.

Many delegates said they opposed an instruction for Reed "until personally released," such as was given him four years ago.

2 ON ROPE FOIL DEATH AT FIRE

Philadelphia, March 28 (AP)—Harry Gore, 33, and his wife had a hot time for an hour or so today.

They awoke to find their rooming house on fire. They tried the door of their third floor room, but flames had reached the hallway door.

Gore took trunk ropes, tied them to the bedpost and suspended them from a window. They let themselves out and clung to the rope ends, but soon flames started biting at their feet.

Firemen set about rescuing the couple, but before they could do so, flames burned through the ropes and Gores dropped 20 feet. An awning broke their fall and they were uninjured except for a scorching.

JAPANESE MAY QUIT LEAGUE

Tokio, March 28 (INS)—The Japanese government will advise its Geneva delegation not to participate in the League of Nations Assembly today, according to reliable reports today, which interpreted such a move as a first step toward complete withdrawal.

This will be done unless "the attitude of the League toward Japan changes by then," according to the information.

Foreign Minister Kenkichi Yoshizawa is known to be in favor of the League, but he was reported to have been overruled at a recent cabinet meeting by militarist elements.

Wife Slayer Given 3 Extra Hours of Life by Storm

Bellefonte, Pa., March 28 (AP) —His electrocution delayed for three hours because a storm disrupted power service, Quinecy Wallandz was electrocuted at 9:42 a. m. today at the State Penitentiary.

Wallanz was to have been executed at 7 a. m. for the murder of his wife, but when attempts were made to test the electric chair, officials found the electric lines into the death house had been snapped by a heavy snow. It required almost three hours to make the repairs.

Wallandz slew his wife after a futile attempt to affect a reconciliation.

Tokio, March 28 (AP)—A Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Changchun today said the new Manchurian government had announced it would take over administration of the salt revenues, accepting responsibility for repayment of foreign loans secured by the revenues.

GARNER TO TAKE FLOOR IN FIGHT FOR TAXES

Washington, March 28 (INS)—Speaker John N. Garner is preparing to take the floor, if necessary, with an appeal to members to vote sufficient taxes to balance the federal budget and preserve the nation's credit.

This was learned authoritatively today following a conference between the speaker and newspapermen in which he reiterated his oft-repeated declaration that the treasury deficit "must be ended."

Although the Speaker declined to comment on reports that he would make his first speech from the floor this session on the tax bill, he disclosed a determination to place the financial affairs of the nation on a sound basis.

In this position, Garner joined President Hoover, Secretary of the Treasury Mills and leaders of both parties in Congress.

"It is my view that the budget must be balanced," Garner told newspapermen.

"It has come to a point where the worst kind of additional taxes are better than no taxes at all.

"I advocated the sales tax because I thought it was the easiest way to balance the budget, as a temporary measure. But the House did not care for that kind of a tax.

EGG-ROLLING DRAWS 2000

Washington, March 28 (AP)—After a rainy and unpromising start, the White House Easter egg-rolling fete became more popular today with Mrs. Hoover joining a throng upon the lawn to distribute small gifts to all the children present.

Although a chill northwest wind whipped the spray of White House fountains 50 feet, nearly 2000 children and members of their families had come and gone from the south lawn by noon. The rain had ceased.

Earlier, the First Lady played hostess to about 150 children of Washington officials inside the executive mansion. Surrounded by Easter baskets in the green room she greeted each receiving in handing a colored egg to each child who passed.

Throughout this ceremony, a small group of hearty children huddled outside near the south portico. Intermittent rain caused cancellation of the first scheduled folk dances on the lawn, but Mrs. Hoover helped stage a minuet in the spacious east room.

REBEL CHINESE DEFEAT JAPS

Harbin, Manchuria, March 28 (INS)—Rebellious Chinese troops today captured the town of Mungan, north of Changchun, capital of the new independent Manchurian state.

Japanese detachments sent from Kirin to protect Nungan were put to rout.

Meanwhile a brigade of Gen. Mah Chan-Shan's troops arrived at Chaotung, 20 miles north of Fuyu, and immediately launched a campaign to retake Fuyu from the rebels.

JAPANESE FEAR FASCIST COUP, SAYS GIBBONS

By FLOYD GIBBONS

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

On Board S. S. Empress of Japan in Mid-Pacific, March 28—Hello everybody and yo ho my lads, yo ho.

The wireless operator just grabbed word out of the air that a truce, temporary at least, has been signed at Shanghai and that little Jimmy Jap and Big John Chinaman are now sitting down crossing chopsticks instead of meat axes.

TROUBLE IN TOKIO

It was a surprise to me and I couldn't understand the prospect of a violent change of government in the face of a successful war and with the country throbbing to patriotic war fever.

But the thing was actually in the air, and there's no mistaking it when American old-timers, long resident in the islands, are making quiet plans to send their women and children to Manila.

They explained there is little fear at present, at least, of a revolution from the Red side, because the police have the Radical organization well in hand. But there's danger of the Cabinet being overthrown and the Diet closed up by young military groups, which have been running sort of wild in their plans for a Fascist uprising for the purpose of establishing a military dictatorship under the Emperor.

There's another big story buzzing around Japan, and the subject of it is steaming across this man's ocean right now on another ship several hundred miles behind this one. He is Cameron Forbes, retiring American ambassador to Japan, who is returning home with Mrs. Forbes.

W. C. Forbes Floyd Gibbons

FORBES INVOLVED

Well, sir, about six weeks ago, while Mr. and Mrs. Forbes were packing up their silk kimonos and carved ivory cigarette holders, which represents such a large part of Japan's industrial contribution to mankind—just then a spokesman of the Japanese foreign office called in American and other foreign correspondents and charged in plain language that America's Ambassador had just the same as called Japanese Foreign Minister Yoshizawa a liar, that Japan felt herself insulted and that if it were not for the fact that Forbes was almost as good as on his way home Japan would request his recall.

Of course, there had been some polite and diplomatic conversation between Forbes and Yoshizawa during that ticklish period of Stimson notes, when Washington was trying to reconcile the statements and promises of the Japanese foreign office with exactly opposite actions of the Japanese military in Shanghai. But that word "liar" was never used, nor anything like it—and that is a fact as was later stated by both Forbes and Yoshizawa.

MAY SPEED UP ARMS PARLEY

Geneva, Switzerland, March 28 (AP)—Impatience of overseas delegates, including Americans, to return home, may succeed in bringing the general disarmament conference to an agreement and adjournment months before Europeans expected.

The conference president, Arthur Henderson of England, and other Europeans arranged an easy-going schedule which permitted not infrequent long breaks. A two-month Easter holiday was contemplated and another long break arranged for the holiday season next August.

The earliest possible date at which adjournment might be expected, leaders thought, would be in the first quarter of 1933, with probability that many months more would be required for the first agreement.

Cooper Union Dean Dead

New York, March 28 (AP)—Francis M. Hartman, dean of Cooper Union, died today after a month's illness. He was 51.

SUNBURNED IN N. H. SNOW!

Believe it or not, but many of the 300 passengers on the B. & M. snow train to Canaan, N. H., yesterday were sunburned. Today they have blistered hands and blistered faces and necks. All very painful, on a blizzardy day, sunburn is. Artist Tap of the Boston Evening American's art department, who, as a snow train passenger, got these impressions, suffered severe sunburn climbing Mount Cardigan on snowshoes and skiing down.

CLUB LEADERS TO AID HOOVER

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Executives representing 30 national and international civic organizations said today after a visit at the White House they had pledged the entire co-operation of their organizations to President Hoover in "any proper reconstruction measure he might propose."

Benjamin A. Ruffin, past president of Lions International, acting as spokesman for the 12 executives and 200,000 jobs had been provided through the efforts of their clubs and "many millions of dollars returned from hoarding."

Ruffin said the President congratulated them upon this effort. Mr. Hoover was quoted as saying: "All problems of this nature are susceptible to ultimate solution by the people themselves—and only by the people themselves."

He said Mr. Hoover added that the Government was limited in its power to aid the solution of economic problems.

Ruffin said the President was informed that the callers, meeting as the executive committee of the Association of Civic Club Executives, had declined today to discuss controversial problems, specifically refusing to enter into a controversy upon the merits of the Eighteenth Amendment, and dismissing also questions concerning bus traffic regulation.

The meeting, he said, was devoted entirely to devising means "to support the administration in any proper move for rehabilitation of the economic fabric."

'LIFE' PLEA FOR COPPER TARIFF

Washington, March 28 (AP)—A tariff on copper was described to the Senate today by Sen. Vandenberg of Michigan as "a matter of life and death."

"It would be nothing short of criminal neglect for Congress to adjourn without equalizing competition in copper and making it possible for sturdy American communities to survive," he said.

Vandenberg took the floor as debate was resumed on the Democratic tariff bill to strip the President of his tariff making powers.

He defended the Hawley-Smoot law, contending conditions would have been worse in this country without that tariff law. He declared unemployment would have been materially greater with lower tariffs.

The copper crisis, he said, had developed from African competition since the enactment of the Hawley-Smoot law and the copper industry "can be saved by nothing except a tariff."

MORIARTY SAYS LABOR BACKS ROOSEVELT

"Organized labor in Massachusetts stands squarely behind Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency of the United States," it was declared today at Mayor Curley's "Roosevelt Forum," 533 Washington st., by James T. Moriarty, president of the Massachusetts branch, American Federation of Labor.

In placing organized labor firmly in the Roosevelt trenches, the Bay State labor head pointed out that four years ago Alfred E. Smith was supported by the majority of the A. F. of L. throughout the nation.

"Unquestionably," said Moriarty, "were he a sincerely honest candidate at the present time, we would again be found advocating his candidacy.

"We accept his statement to the press on Feb. 8 that he was not a candidate and did not propose to make a pre-convention fight, as expressing exactly his position.

HAS AIDED WORKERS

"No man ever occupied the position of Chief Executive of a State of this Union that labored more zealously or whole-heartedly for the welfare of the individual worker and for the welfare of organized labor than the present Governor of the great State of New York.

"I am firmly of the opinion that in view of what he has done for the welfare of the entire American people, not only organized labor, but the American nation will be found supporting his candidacy on April 26 in Massachusetts, and in November throughout the entire nation."

With the address of the labor leader, the big Roosevelt push in Massachusetts got into its stride today.

In addition to holding the demonstration by labor leaders, headed by Moriarty, at the Washington st. forum, Mayor Curley will open up in three Boston wards tonight.

He will take the stump in East Boston, Charlestown and in Ward 19, Roxbury. A circuit of the other 20 wards is scheduled for the balance of the week.

In a telephone conversation today from Boston to his father's headquarters in New York, James Roosevelt declared that Massachusetts Democratic leaders outside of Boston are "developing a surprising independence and expressing their willingness" to appoint Roosevelt.

A threat by the mayor to reveal difficulties encountered in getting some of the present "Smith company" on the line for Smith in 1928 today was causing lively speculation in political circles.

From the platform at an enthusiastic overflow meeting in the Dutch Room, Hotel Touraine, headquarters of the Women's Roosevelt League, the mayor said he would not go into the "chicanery or crookedness" which delayed the start of the Smith campaign four years ago.

RIDICULES ELY

After stating that he would have been found again, giving his time and money to the cause of Smith, if he had not removed himself from the contest, the mayor charged that it was unfair to the former New York governor and "an injustice to the submerged millions in America who have been traveling hopelessly in the depths of depression without prospect of relief, to ask that Alfred E. Smith permit the use of his name in order to block the nomination of the one man that Wall Street fears and in whom the public have faith and stand ready to elect, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

The mayor declared that he was amused at the "new found devotion" of Governor Ely to Smith.

PRICES OF FOOD DECLINE 15 PER CENT

Food prices dropped 15 per cent in Massachusetts during the year ending last November 30, with the chain store a beneficial factor in the saving to the consumer, according to the annual report of the division on the necessaries of life, made public today.

The chain grocery store has not only become a beneficial factor in community life, the report states, but has also benefitted the independent grocer who has adopted modern sales and service methods.

SAVING OF $105,000,000

"During the past year," the report declares, "there has been a 15 per cent reduction in the cost of food, resulting in a saving to Massachusetts consumers of approximately $105,000,000.

"The chain store outlets have become part of our community life; their warehouses in effect are a distributing center from which food is supplied after the demands of each community have been ascertained.

"The method of delivering food to individual stores for home consumption eliminates waste which was formerly charged to the consumer, and provides a quick but small profit through sales volume."

Fuel costs, however, the report cites, have not been reduced commensurate with reduction in other commodities, and on the continued high price of anthracite, it blames the consumers' turning to fuel substitutes.

CONSTABLES CRITICIZED

It is declared in the report:

"The anthracite dealers are bemoaning the fact that consumers have turned to substitutes, but thus far they have done nothing collectively to rectify this condition.

"The use of coke has increased to such an extent that what was formerly a by-product and a drug on the market is now a fuel in demand. It is the opinion of this division that retail prices for coke are too high and are based presumably on the market prices for anthracite."

Constables in Massachusetts assigned to collect bills have abused their powers by intimidation tactics against well-intentioned debtors, the report asserts. The report says:

"Credit protection is essential and must be maintained but the division contends, in the absence of regulatory legislation, that more humane and intelligent methods should be employed, the operation of which will eliminate the professional strong-arm methods of collection agencies.

"It is our opinion that an appointive procedure should be adopted, which would place the responsibility of securing an appointment upon the ability of the applicant to present satisfactory evidence of his integrity and character."

HANNA KIN GETS KIDNAP THREAT

Washington, March 28 (INS)—A kidnaping threat was made against Little Daisy Davidson, daughter of Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson, granddaughter of Mark Hanna, is believed by the child's father to be the "work of a crank." The mother had been instructed to leave $2000 at the corner grocery store near the Davidson home.

Previously letters had been received by Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, whose daughter Paulina was threatened, and by Sir Willmott Lewis, correspondent for the London Times. His son Willmott, Jr., had been threatened. In each case $1500 had been demanded.

Police are seeking a marine sergeant who deserted early in March.

New Anti-Hoarding Reports Are Sought

To augment reports already received from banks of the State, showing the amounts of money that have been returned to circulation from hoarding, all chambers of commerce, boards of trade, local anti-hoarding committees and other organizations have now been requested by the State committee of the Citizens' Reconstruction Organization to send reports of evidence of restored money from other sources than that traceable by banks.

NURSE GRILLED IN KIDNAPING

A woman who declared she could find the Lindbergh baby "if she had the dough," Miss Betty Gruenler, 37, Back Bay nurse, was questioned twice today by police.

She surrendered first at police headquarters when she learned Newark, N. J., police had asked Boston police to question her on a report that she once used the name "Betty Gow," the name of the Lindbergh nurse.

Capt. William H. Lewis queried her particularly on the whereabouts of John B. "War Bird" Marston, wartime aviator and friend of Miss Gruenler.

After she said she had known Marston for five years, but hadn't seen him for months, Capt. Lewis allowed her to return to her apartment.

Two hours later Deputy Supt. McDevitt sent for her and plied questions for more than an hour.

Again she denied knowing the whereabouts of Marston but she admitted she wrote to him two weeks ago.

In asking the Boston police to find Marston and the nurse, Chief McNeil of Newark said he understood they had knowledge of a kidnap plot seven years ago in which a man was to have been held aboard a boat for $8000 ransom.

Miss Gruenler denied she knew of such a plot. She told police she was graduated from City Hospital in 1921 and since has worked at hospitals in Bloomfield and Newark.

MACK'S KIDNAP TALE DOUBTED

Harry Mack, Boston prisoner who told federal authorities the "inside story" of the Leavenworth prison break as he got it from Harold Fontaine, Detroit gangster, in Windsor, Ont., jail, was arraigned in Superior Court today on a default warrant.

Federal agents and police doubt his vague story that Fontaine told him of the Lindbergh kidnaping two weeks before it occurred, but they do not doubt his detailed admissions of what Fontaine told him regarding the Leavenworth riot.

The Department of Justice wants to take him back to Windsor to testify at extradition proceedings seeking Fontaine's removal to Kansas, but Mack doesn't want to go back, his attorney, John J. Mahoney, said.

Is Mack's default on a larceny charge is lifted and he is tried here, his deposition will be presented at the Windsor hearing.

He was a seven weeks' cell mate of Fontaine, a member of the "Purple" gang, arrested in Windsor in in January in connection with the penitentiary break.

Mara Wins Point in Trust Co.'s Suit

New York, March 28 (AP)—Timothy A. Mara, sports promoter, won a point today in the suit filed against him by the County Trust Co. to collect a $50,000 note, when Supreme Court Justice John Ford ordered Orie R. Kelly, president of the bank, to appear for examination April 4.

The court denied a motion by the trust company to vacate the order for Kelly's examination. The bank contended that as Kelly was not president in 1928, when the note was signed, he had no knowledge of it.

POLICE KILLER CALLED 'GOOFY'

New Bedford, March 28 (AP)—Testimony to show that Roland G. Bosquet, 25, accused of murdering Patrolman Edward E. Gobin of Attleboro January 20, had the mentality of a boy of 11, was introduced by defense counsel today.

Counsel said an alienist, Dr. R. G. Provost, would testify the Norton grocery boy was retarded and had a mental age equivalent to that of a boy betwen 10 and 11.

Three small boys testified that Bosquet played with boys and girls eight, nine and ten years old in such childish games as "ring around Rosie" and that he apparently enjoyed bouncing a rubber ball. The boys testified he was nicknamed "Goofy."

MEDAL FOR VALLEE IF HE CROONS PROSPERITY

By GILBERT SELDES

PEOPLE WHO GO ABOUT complaining that President Hoover isn't doing enough obviously do not read the papers carefully. In a single day, according to authentic dispatches, the President received a fishing license from the Oregon State Game Commission, planted a cedar tree from George Washington's boyhood farm on the White House grounds, and, most important of all, "visited with" Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Vallee. There is a tradition that visitors to, if not with, the President do not make public the subject of conversation. But, "asked about his chat, Vallee said Mr. Hoover had suggested, smiling, that if he could make up and sing a song with a prosperity theme he might 'rate a medal.'"

GILBERT SELDES

I doubt whether the American Government authorizes any medal sufficient for such an exploit. Obviously the citation would be "for distinguished service," or "for exceptional bravery in the face of the enemy," but, so far as I know, we have no medal to give any man merely for making a fool of himself.

The French medaille militaire is an exceptional reward of valor. It can be won only by private soldiers under fire—with this single exception, that it may also be awarded to a general, provided he has already won most of the other available medals. That is, a general who saw no active service when he was a plain soldier, or failed to distinguish himself sufficiently, can redeem himself and win the highest honor of the French army by getting a medal reserved for the meanest private. It is rarely awarded to commanding officers; the ranks are jealous and, although they are democratic, do not want to belittle their honors by broadcasting to officers.

The implication is obvious. If Mr. Vallee gets a medal the President ought to get one, too. After all, if we are to trust Mr. Vallee, the suggestion that we should be crooned into prosperity came from a statesman who happens also to be Commander-in-Chief of the United States Army, and not from Mr. Vallee himself. Moreover, the suggestion is in line with most of the efforts to rescue us from our troubles. I mean that long before the days of radio crooning was used to put fractious children to sleep. The idea seems to be that if we would only go to sleep for sixty days we could dream ourselves back to prosperity.

A hundred years after his death, Goethe is universally regarded as one of the greatest of modern men, one of the few great men who ever lived. He seems to us to be the last complete man before the age of specilization began. He was a scientist and he was a poet; he was a critic and a novelist; he was a statesman and a lover. I remember that a friend of mine once said to some Germans that Goethe had encountered every experience possible to man, and the good Germans answered, "Ah, but he never knew the pleasures of family life."

There is one passage in the great conversations recorded by Eckermann, which less fortunate people ought always to remember. Goethe was looking back on a life full of satisfactions and honors; Napoleon had said, "This is a man!" and not a few women had said the same; he had always been prosperous, nearly always healthy, always respected—he had had everything most of us desire, and he said to Eckermann that most of his life had been "nothing but pain and burden," and seriously affirmed that "during the whole of my seventy-five years I have had four weeks of genuine well-being."

The Brooklyn Museum, by agreement with the late John Singer Sargent, refuses to allow art students to make complete and finished copies of that artist's paintings and thus brings the news to the world that art students exist who really want to copy Sargent. Sargent is a painter who even in his lifetime paid the penalty of prosperity. He made portraits which the sitters liked and critics sneered at him without even bothering to explain their sneers. Even his defenders often said that his pictures were ironic, but the subject didn't know it. To most modernists he had become a sort of Longfellow of portrait painting.

Young poets do not copy or imitate Longfellow, but at the end of thirty years of disgrace the position of Longfellow, like the position of Tennyson, is beginning to improve. Perhaps the people who paid ten thousand dollars for a portrait by Sargent invested their money at least as well as the people who put their ten thousand dollars into blue chip stocks.

Prettiest Deb Won by Gerry

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER
Universal Service Society Editor

New York, March 28 (US)—Marjorie Y. Kane, the prettiest "deb" of 1928, has captured a genuine 14-kt. matrimonial prize, young Elbridge T. Gerry.

A formal announcement of the Gerry-Kane betrothal will be made today by Marjorie's pater and mater, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Kane, of Locust Valley.

Next May, when the wedding bells peal out, Marjorie will annex a cognomen that long has been famous in New York-Newport society.

Marjorie, who is the sister of Barbara C. Kane, attended Miss Chapin's School in this city and was graduated from Miss Walker's Institution of Learning in Simsbury, Ct., in June, 1927.

Young Gerry prepared for Harvard at St. Paul's, up in Concord, N. H., and received his sheepskin at the university on the Charles river last June. At Harvard he was a member of the Spee Club and here in New York he can proudly point to membership in the Knickerbocker and Racquet and Tennis clubs.

Through his father, Robert Livingston Gerry of 69 E. 79th st., he is a direct descendant of Thomas Gerry, who came from England and settled in Massachusetts in 1750, and is a great, great grandson of the earlier Elbridge Gerry, who served as a member of the Continental Congress, governor of Massachusetts and vice-President of the United States, and who also won fame as a signer of the Declaration of Independence.

There are few women in New York who have led a fuller, richer and more deeply interesting life than Frances M. Wolcott; and she has now told of it in her "Heritage of Years," which she calls kaleidoscopic memories." Minton, Balch & Co. are the publishers.

Having reached the age of 80, this remarkable woman is as young today, in heart, as she was when a girl in Buffalo. Life has always interested her. She has traveled far and wide, met the most famous people of all sorts — poets, actors, politicians, soldiers, statesmen, women of brains and breeding; and it was John Buchan, in London, who told her that she should set down the story of her vivid days. But she told him that she could not remember her past. He then asked, "What is your first memory?" and she replied, "A wildcat in a tree on a farm in Genesee county." He told her that was a good beginning for her book. And this we have it.

Mrs. Wolcott is not one of your stupid optimists. She has seen life, and found it good; but not all her years have been overladen with happiness. Sorrow came to her, along with joy; but she has remained a sane observer of the scene, an enthusiastic looker-on at the pageant of days as they marched by her; and she is as thrilled today at a sunset as she was in her youth.

"To enjoy life," she says, "one should have five keen senses. One should relish good food, the bouquet of fine wine, the song of a bird or a symphony, the sight of towns, the vastness of the golden sands of the desert, the green world and the melancholy romance of a birdy-gurdy playing at twilight a block away.

But she knows that one cannot have, or expect, everything out of life. "Many there are who long for the divine companion of the road, possibly the poet in tatters who eagerly climbs toward the light upon the mountain; but the perfect comrade, like the flawless hour, is the treasure at the end of the rainbow."

Mrs. Wolcott once asked a clever Frenchmen to define an interesting person. He replied, "An interested one alive with "intellectual curiosity."

She has found many such in her wanderings up and down the earth; and she tells of her friendships and adventures with all the buoyant gusto of a girl of twenty. The result is a stimulating, fascinating chronicle, filled with wisdom and wit.

Irvin Cobb knows how to mix sentiment and humor, as an old black mammy knows how to mix a cake. He probably couldn't tell you how he does it, any more than the mammy could write out her recipe. But there it is—a pinch of this, a touch of that, and presto! there is a marvelous concoction.

He has made one of his character, Judge Priest, beloved of us all; and in his new collection of short stories, "Down Yonder with Judge Priest," he returns to this enchanting human being, and in a round dozen of tales he brings him again vividly before you. Ray Long and Richard R. Smith are the publishers.

There is no more touching story in this volume than one called "An Incident of the Noble Experiment." What happens therein is poignantly told, and it causes the old Judge to resign from the bench. But, as he says, "It's hard—after forty years."

All the good old philosophy 'n' herb of the plantation of the South; all the understanding of the colored people. In one story the Judge has been calling his darky boys and receiving no response. Finally the boy appears.

"Where you been all this time that I've been yellin' my lungs out fur you?" asks the Judge.

"Where I been? Ah been right yere fast ex my laigs'd carry me."

"I hollered three sep'rate times fur you, boy, one of my voices."

"I didn't heah you fust time, Jedge; didn't heah you twell third time."

"Is that so? How did you know 'twuzz the third time, then?"

And typical American humor comes to us in the little book, so published by Long & Smith, "Your Next President!" by the incorrigible Eddie Cantor, in collaboration with David Freedman, with drawings by S. L. Hydeman. It is hilarious; and if anything can make us forget the depression for a few moments this will do it.

The very dedication is funny:

To Miss Prosperity:

Come Home—Everything will be forgiven!

"Well," announces Mr. Cantor, "I've accepted my nomination for President, and I'm ready for the campaign. I have a slogan and a platform, and now all I need is a party—and they're giving me one at my uncle's house."

"I've been approached by both the Democratic and Republican National Committees. They offered me a high Federal position to keep out of the race. But I turned down their offer—who wants to be a lame duck?"

Heaven knows we need a smile in the White House in these perilous days. And perhaps Eddie Cantor wouldn't make a bad President. Nothing could be funnier than some of the Chief Executives we have had in the past.

BRITAIN'S NOTE STUDIED BY DE VALERA

By LINTON WELLS

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Dublin, March 28 (INS)—Determined to abolish the oath of allegiance to the British crown regardless of consequences, President Eamon De Valera today sought the advice of legal and constitutional authorities in drafting his reply to the recent note of the British government.

De Valera devoted the Easter holiday to a careful study of the British communication, which denied the Irish Free State authorities the right to do away with the oath and withhold the land annuities.

EVADES ALL TROUBLE

Official publication of the reply, along with the text of the British note, was expected toward the end of the week.

An utter lack of violence characterized the Easter Sunday celebrations throughout the country, contrary to all expectations.

Notable was an absolute non-participation by De Valera's government in any of the extensive Republican ceremonies.

TAKES "MIDDLE COURSE."

Observers noted that the government apparently was pursuing a middle course between those who want all present relations maintained and the thousands who yesterday cheered for establishment of "the Irish republic as a sovereign, independent state," as expressed by one speaker.

Britain Gave Ireland Land Annuities, Says MacWhite

Washington, March 28 (AP)—Michael MacWhite, minister of the Irish Free State, issued a statement today denying his government proposes a repudiation of land annuities. He said the Irish government relies on an act of the British parliament passed in 1920 in which Great Britain surrendered the annuities to Ireland and assumed the obligation to meet the dividends and the general service of the land stock debt.

Graf Zep Placed West of Madeira

Friedrichshafen, Ger., March 28 (INS)—The Graf Zeppelin, en route here to complete its first round-trip of the new Germany-to-Brazil air passenger service, raced at 1:09 a. m., E. S. T., that it was just west of Madeira.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, in command, gave the ship's position as 33 degrees N., 20 W., and her speed 70 miles an hour.

New Jersey Senate to Vote on Repeal

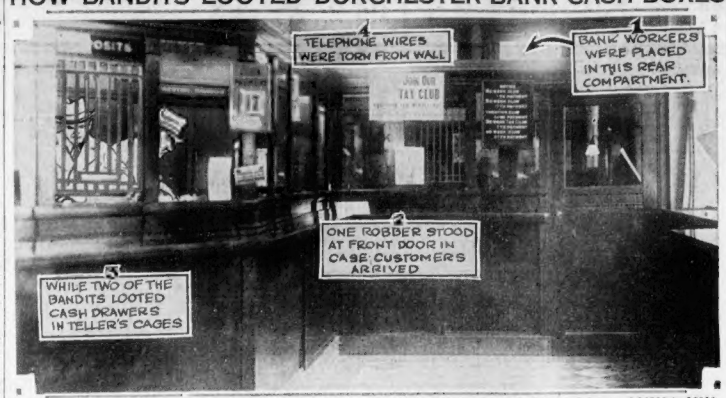
Trenton, N. J., March 28 (AP)—The State Senate will vote tonight on a bill to repeal the Hobart act, which provides for state prohibition enforcement.

A poll of Senate members indicated enough votes for the 11 necessary for passage of the repeal measure. The House already has passed the bill.

Septic Sore Throat Is Fatal to Policeman

Walter F. McDonough, for about five years a member of the Somerville police department, died yesterday in Somerville Hospital. He was taken ill about a week ago with a septic sore throat and it spread rapidly through his entire system.

HOW BANDITS LOOTED DORCHESTER BANK CASH BOXES



Interior of Codman square branch of Dorchester Savings Bank at Washington and Kenwood streets, Dorchester, where manager and two women tellers were herded into a rear compartment by three gunmen soon after the place was opened today. Two of the bandits then looted the cash boxes of $4500 to $6000, while the third one stood guard at the door to deal with any depositors or other customers that might arrive. The bandits escaped in a car they had parked in Kenwood st. (Staff photo.)

BANK ROBBERS TAKE $4500

the parked car and he noted the registration number.

AUTO PLATES STOLEN

It was 440,955. The plates, issued to Virginia Della of 305 Grove st., Brockton, were reported stolen on March 26.

Smithies went to a store in the same block and telephoned an alarm and the registration number and descriptions of three robbers were broadcast throughout Greater Boston.

It is believed the bandit car swung back into Washington st. and was passed by a police car responding to the alarm. A resident told Capt. John E. Driscoll that while the police car was approaching down Washington st. with its siren sounding, a sedan of the type used in the holdup pulled momentarily into a driveway at 571 Washington st., and when the police car had passed backed out and proceeded in the direction of Milton.

3 BANDITS 25 YEARS OLD

Edgar A. Crain, treasurer of the bank, at first estimated the amount stolen at $10,000 but discovery that money in the open vault was overlooked decreased the sum.

Smithies and the women tellers agreed that each of the gunmen was about 25 years old. One was six feet, 180 pounds, wore a brown hat and blue overcoat, and carried a blue steel automatic.

Another was 5 feet, 11 inches, 180 pounds and similarly attired. Thick lips were a distinguishing characteristic. He displayed an exceptionally long barreled revolver.

The third bandit was of slight build, about five feet seven inches, 140 pounds.

POLICE PROBE DEMANDED

The holdup climaxes a long series of hold crimes perpetrated in the jurisdiction of the Fields Corner police division, which is captained by Harry N. Dickinson, and it resulted in an emergency executive session of the Dorchester Board of Trade, and the issuing of the following statement by President Patrick J. Connelly:

"The Dorchester Board of Trade, through its president, speaking for the people of the district, demand that the efficient head of the Boston police department take cognizance of conditions in Dorchester arising from numerous breaks, holdups and bag snatchings.

"We call upon Commissioner Hultman and Supt. Crowley to make an immediate investigation of conditions in our district.

"The taxpayers are entitled to proper police protection. If more police are necessary, we should have them. We have taken up the matter with the police commissioner on several previous occasions."

Notorious Burmese Rebel Chief Killed

Calcutta, March 28 (INS)—Po Hnya, notorious Burmese rebel leader, was killed today in a raid on Toungoo, Burma, according to reports from Rangoon. Five of the chieftain's followers were captured.

CHOKES ON 55TH EGG

And Firemen Fill Empty Bath Tubs

Toledo, March 28 (AP)—Charles Hammyre has all the eggs he wants for a year—and they are all inside him. A restaurant sign "All the Easter eggs you can eat for a quarter" lured him. He entered and started eating. The 55th egg he choked and collapsed. When he heard the ambulance siren, he arose and called home.

They Beat the Water Co.

Chicago, March 28 (AP)—In suburban Midlothian some folks call the fire department when they want a dip in the bathtub.

Cut off from water service by a utilities concern because they failed to pay their bills, eight families turned to the firemen for relief. And what did the village fire chief, J. Sagadin, do but take the new fire truck, which is equipped with a water reserve tank, and fill their bathtubs.

Two Make a Parade

Baltimore, March 28 (AP)—Two may not be a crowd but it's fashion parade. Only a couple of lassies dared the Easter rain to show off their new duds. One wore red, the other powder blue and—take it from the policemen on the route—they looked swell.

But They Have No Valley

Dusilovgrad, March 28 (AP)—This Montenegrin mountain village has gone American. Every dance ends with "Home, Sweet Home" and a party is incomplete unless some one recites "Casey at the Bat." It's all due to Ljuba Patichevich. He traveled in America years ago.

Snakes Do Have Hips

Chicago, March 28 (AP)—The snake's hips" may not be so slangy after all. The Field Museum points to the skeleton of a rock python to show some snakes really have them. It retains a vestige of hind legs.

Had Their Crash First

New York, March 28 (AP)—This plane had an accident before it ever took the air. Mrs. Sadie Warren Davis was christening the ship in which Leon D. F. Paris, Negro pilot, plans a flight to Haiti. "he hit it with a ginger ale bottle. The bottle didn't break and the engine cowl got dented.

A Modern Jonah

Potsdam, March 29 (AP)—Nicolas Bellin is a modern Jonah who intends to go aplaces. He has built a boat that looks like a whale with an airplane engine on the tail. He's going around the world. Traveling from Liverpool to New York in three days would be pie, he says.

GREAT TEST OF POWER FACED LINCOLN WHEN DEATH STEPPED IN

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS

"IF BOOTH HAD MISSED," Arthur Goodman's drama now playing in Boston may or may not be a technically skillful piece of theatrical entertainment. I leave that to the critics to decide. But to my mind there is absolutely no doubt as to its historical interest, its imaginative boldness and power, and its truthfulness. Such a play in England, where people possess both historical knowledge and political sense, would rouse the greatest interest. Indeed, the success of the London season has been a piece by Noel Coward which is purely and simply a historical pageant. But in America, where the democracy has almost no exact historical knowledge and little political sense, I am moved to celebrate the miracle that such a piece could get itself written and produced at all. We owe the production to Walter Hartwig, experienced manager of Little Theater Tournaments.

Johnson's Fate for Lincoln

"If Booth Had Missed" assumes that Lincoln lived to carry through his reconstruction plans after the Civil War. We like to believe that, in that case, the abominations of reconstruction would not have occurred; that Lincoln's popularity and prestige would have enabled him to carry through reconstruction as successfully as he did the war. Mr. Goodman assumes, on the other hand, that something very like what happened to Johnson would have happened to Lincoln, too; that the same forces would inevitably have produced the same results. And the history of the reconstruction period would seem to show that Goodman is right.

The Boston critics exhibited a mild surprise, almost doubt, at the play's insistence that the Massachusetts Republicans voted for Lincoln's impeachment. Here I have no doubt that Goodman is right. Sumner was a fanatical abolitionist, a radical Republican, one of Thaddeus Stevens' strongest supporters in attacking Johnson. (Incidentally, he should have been in the cast.) And Ben Butler, able and demogogic, was one of the managers of the impeachment, as in the play. Some doubt was expressed that Stanton would have fought Lincoln's policies. But he never saw eye to eye with Lincoln, he was a radical Republican, and he did keep his cabinet position by act of Congress after Johnson had dismissed him. And there is no doubt that Grant was in the councils of the Radicals.

But, you say, these men would never have turned against Lincoln. What are the facts? Before Lincoln's death he had to veto a reconstruction bill passed by the Republican majority, which foreshadowed the later bills. His own party intrigued against him in his second election, hoping to nominate McClellan. The Republicans in Congress were only waiting the end of the war to strip the President of his power and restore control to the Congress.

Lincoln Was Military Dictator

One fact about Lincoln which is never taught our children is that Lincoln's conduct of the Civil War was a military dictatorship such as never existed before in America and never has existed since. He suspended the habeas corpus virtually throughout the war. He was bitterly denounced by his own party in Congress. John Hay records admiringly that "he ruled his cabinet with a tyrannous authority." During the war he transcended the Constitution and made it inoperative. With peace those powers would cease and the strong Radical Republican majority was determined to control the government.

If, therefore, Johnson was impreached for carrying out imperfectly Lincoln's policies, it is not at all improbable that Lincoln's term might have been disastrous to him and the South. For Stevens and Sumner and Butler had the votes!

So far Goodman's thesis is sound. I am sorry that his theatrical device to bring about the impeachment of Lincoln is psychologically unsound. In the play Mrs. Lincoln innocently turns over some letters to Stanton which give the Radicals a handle for impeachment. Now Mary Todd Lincoln was in some respects much as Goodman describes her, a shrill shrew of a woman, emotional, bad tempered, and spoiled. But she was no fool. She had considerable political sense. Before Lincoln's nomination, while he was away from Springfield on his long circuit riding, she kept his political and personal fences in repair. She was shrewd enought to prevent his acceptance of an appointment as governor of Oregon at a time when he believed he had no political future. Mary Todd Lincoln believed otherwise. She never would have committed the error which is the turning point of the play.

Appeal to People Strong

The other question is more profound, would not the shrewdness with which Lincoln carried through the war have enabled him to make a far better showing against the Radicals than poor Johnson did? The people elected him President a second time against the will of his party. Would he not have been able to rally the people against the Stevens gang, so that it would never have come to a question of impeachment? Probably. We have faith that he might have succeeded, although the detailed story of the intrigues of those dreadful days makes it little better than a fifty-fifty bet. One simply cannot imagine what Stevens and Butler and the rest of the crowd were like unless one knows that story. They were incredible!

It is no detraction from the imaginative boldness and power of Goodman's play, his historical and political sense, to say frankly that I do not believe that the play would ever have been written had it not been for the great popular success, a few years ago, of Claude Bowers's detailed study of the period in "The Tragic Era." A rich and persuasive volume, documented from every possible source, it took its place at once as a valuable addition to our historical literature. True, it was partisan, often bitterly partisan, but it only said more violently and with greater elaboration what every reputable historian of the reconstruction era has said. Bowers piled up the evidence so that there was left no escape for the apologists of the Republican party.

On that basis the play "If Booth Had Missed" is a far more sincere and truthful picture of life, imaginary as it is, than many a piece which prides itself upon its every day realism. It has behind it an idea and a conviction.

DRUG TO KILL POND'S FISHY FLAVOR

At the Fire Repair Shop With the Candid Camera

By CANDID CAMERA

I was surprised to know that there were so many men in the Boston fire department that do not go to fires and that do not answer alarms. So when I was taken to fire headquarters I was greeted by a crowd of nice people.

First came Superintendent of Maintenance Edward E. Williamson. He is in charge of the department that has to do with the repairing of all fire apparatus.

I never knew the fire department had a ladder builder, but here he is, Matz C. Porrel, the man in charge of this work. He's been in the department 43 years.

Did you know that the fire department had more than 500,000 feet of fire hose? Thomas W. Kennedy has charge of repairing it all. He was expanding a coupling when I snapped him.

CHEMICAL PUT IN WATERS OF SPOT POND

Metropolitan District Commission Acts After Complaint by Hundreds of Users

Engineers and chemical experts of the Metropolitan District Commission today took drastic measures to eliminate the "fishy" taste from the water of Spot Pond.

More than 500,000 residents of surrounding cities and towns are served by this water.

The condition, said to be due to an organism called "uroglena," sent a crew of workmen out in the lashing rain today "sowing" more than three tons of copper sulphate from the sides of motor boats.

The chemical, packed in bags attached to the sides of the boat, was poured into the water as the motor craft sped about the pond.

The cost of the chemical is estimated at $275. According to Chief Engineer W. E. Foss, it will eradicate the "fishy taste" from the water within the week.

RAILWAY TRUCK BILL SCORED

A stand against railroads entering the trucking business was voiced today by Henry C. Attwill, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission, in a speech before the legislative committee on transportation on a bill to remove trucking restrictions from railroads.

"I think experience has shown in every instance where a New England railroad has gone into an outside venture that it has turned out unfortunately and disastrously to the railroad," he said.

"Only recently the New Haven road lost $13,000,000 it put into the Worcester & Springfield street railway systems. It put in $3,000,000 more in an effort to recoup. What it invested in the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company is all gone, as that road is in the hands of a receiver, and I have an idea that what they put into the Springfield Street Railway Company is also gone."

Other bills opposed removal of the restrictions were Day Baker, legislative counsel for Motor Truck Clubs of Massachusetts, Inc., and Atty. Wallace H. Walker, counsel for the same organization.

JOBLESS PAIR UP ON RUM CHARGE

Because they were unemployed and wanted to earn $10, a man and his nephew were in federal court today on liquor charges.

Martin P. White and Alton White, both of Hudson st., Lynn, pleaded not guilty to charges of transporting liquor.

They were arrested in Chelsea when police found them transferring packages of alcohol from one automobile to another. Both claimed they did not know what the packages contained.

Thomas F. Murphy, federal agent, told U. S. Commissioner Jenney he believed the men were not in the "bootleg profession," but Jenney ordered further investigation until Thursday.

$50 FOR A SALE TO 'STUDENT'

His zeal to aid in the course of higher education cost David Feldman, proprietor of a drug store in Broadway, Cambridge, $50 in Cambridge court today.

Police say they found 61 pints of bottled in bond liquor, four quarts of wine, and other ingredients for exaltion in Feldman's store when they raided it recently.

Special Officer Francis W. Powers, who said he obtained a quart of gin by posing as a student, led them to the supply, police said.

Feldman admitted findings on the charges of illegal sale of liquor and of the keeping and exposing for sale and was fined $50 on each charge. Judge Green, however, suspended sentence on the second charge.

75-Foot Bar Seized in Chelsea Raid; 2 Held

A 75-foot mahogany bar, four gambling machines, five big mirrors and a brewing plant were seized by dry agents in a raid in Carroll st., Chelsea. It was disclosed to Commissioner Jenney in Federal court today on arraignment of James Sears of Raymond, N. H., and Andrew DiMarco of Pearl st., Malden.

Pleading not guilty to charges of possessing and manufacturing liquor, Sears and DiMarco were held in $1000 each for hearing Thursday.

Lady Luck Rides With West End Boy in 4-Story Fall

The angel of luck rode down four terrifying stories with John DeAngelis, eight, of 3 Wall st., West End—and John has given up playing on rooftops for an indefinite period.

John was having a delightful time Easter Sunday on the roof of 8 Wall st., when he stepped on a burlap-covered skylight—and vanished. Down four stories he tumbled into the shaft beneath the skylight, but such is the luck of youth that he escaped with a few bruises.

Cambridge Boy Reported Missing

The disappearance of John Sico, 17, of Winter st., East Cambridge, was reported to police yesterday by his father, Antonio Sico.

IRENE FORE IN HIDING FROM GANGSTERS

Ex-Husband, Seeking Custody of Child, Learns That Police Guard Her Against Gunmen

To save her from possible vengeance by gunmen, Mrs. Irene Fore, who gave up riches to associate with gangsters, has been hidden away by police, it was learned today as her husband sought her to serve papers in connection with an attempt by him to secure custody of their child.

The husband, Clyde Fore of Brookline, said he had been unable to learn the hiding place of his young wife but had learned that police had taken her from a South End lodging house.

She went secretly to the lodging house from the Y. W. C. A. after officials of that organization had been informed two gunmen were waiting outside the building to kill her and seal her lips forever against giving information against them.

Clyde Fore, whose mother, Mrs. Otis V. Robertson of Garrison rd., Brookline, is caring for the four-year-old boy, obtained a divorce less than three weeks ago on the ground of unfaithfulness, but Judge Joseph R. McCoole believed the boy would be happier with his mother and gave her custody.

However, when Fore learned that the boy was not with his mother, but had been boarded out to a private family in Roxbury, the father secured legal advice and took the boy from the Roxbury address last Wednesday.

Then he began proceedings in probate court at Dedham to secure legal custody of his son.

'Dry' Literature in Schools Resented

The distribution of W. C. T. literature among eighth grade pupils of Melrose schools in connection with a $5 prize contest for the best essay against the drink habit has aroused the ire of some parents, it was reported today. Supt. Stewart said he was not aware of any opposition.

ROME STATION CAUSED MIXUP

Operators inn the Italian Broadcasting Company station who failed to switch from their own program to the international broadcast from the Vatican City, where the music of the Sistine choir was being transmitted, were responsible for the fact that the music from Rome did not come through locally over Station WEEI as scheduled, after Cardinal O'Connell made introductory remarks.

Because of the error, it was announced, that the National Broadcasting Company and Station WEEI in Boston have made explanations to Cardinal O'Connell and expressed their deep regret at the unfortunate occurence.

Cardinal O'Connell in his remarks yesterday referred to the fact that he was once rector of the North American College at Rome, and before that time as a student had charge of the choir there. While directing the choir he revealed that he composed a hymn to be used on days when priests were ordained.

The Cardinal's voice came clear and forceful over the air, but there followed a brief delay. Then there was a bit of dance music which was quickly shut off. This was then followed by the station announcer's statement that "due to conditions over which we have no control" the scheduled broadcast would not be presented.

Mother Is Told How Lola Met Death

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

At 11:30 on New Year's Eve Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt arrives at the exclusive Mayfair Club in response to a mysterious summons from District Attorney Merle Dougherty. The latter informs Colt he believes Lola Carewe, known as "The Night Club Lady," widow of Gaylord Gifford, the cotton millionaire, is the "higher-up" responsible for numerous jewel robberies perpetrated recently which baffle the police. Lola is slain mysteriously in her apartment. Christine is later found dead. Colt orders the dust in the room analyzed. Parts of a scorpion are found. Dr. Baldwin dies of the bite of a scorpion and leaves a startling statement incriminating Lola.

NOW READ ON—

THE HAUNTED look still glimmered in Mrs. Carewe's eyes. We stood by her bed, and she looked up at us though the wisps of her gray hair, as she chewed pitifully upon a crusty remnant of browned toast. Her breakfast tray was across her blanketed old shanks.

"Good morning, Mr. Colt," she greeted. "Have you found out who did it?"

The commissioner shook his head as he drew up a chair by the side of her bed.

"I'm afraid I'll need your help to do that,' he countered.

The old woman darted at him a gleam of undisguised suspicion.

"I? How can I help you? I don't feel as if I will ever be able to get out of this bed again—but I'll have to do that for the funeral. I don't believe I'll ever live through that."

TOLD OF THE SCARPIONS

She began to cry.

"Mrs. Carewe," began Colt hastily—even after years of police work he has never been able to endure passively the tears of a woman—"I shall have to put to you again what I asked you so abruptly last night—do you know of any person who could have a good reason for wishing your daughter dead?"

The old woman dried her eyes with a lace handkerchief and then shook her head vigorously.

"No one, Mr. Colt. Everybody liked Lola."

She shot a glance at Thatcher Colt as if to gauge the effect of her reply.

"You did not know of any person with whom she had quarreled violently?"

Again that vigorous shake of the head and an equally vigorous denial.

"We went over all that last night," she added querulously. "I'm not up to much this morning, Mr. Colt."

But the commissioner was not to be put off.

"Do you remember two little boxes that your daughter had in her possession during the last few weeks?"

"Boxes? What kind of boxes?"

"A little larger, I should say, than a pack of cards. Much thicker than that. Probably of unpainted wood. Ever see anything like that?"

"No. I don't remember anything like that. What would she keep in them?"

"Something alive!"

MRS. CAREWE CRIED

"Alive!" squeaked the old woman. "What do you mean—something alive——"

"A creature whose sting is instant death."

The Commissioner and the mother stared at each other in painful silence.

"Why would Lola want anything like that?" asked the old woman at last.

"I was hoping you could tell me that."

The mother's withered lips shaped themselves into a thick downward arc.

"She had a dog and a parrot—but what kind of creature would she have in the box?"

"A scorpion," replied Thatcher Colt quietly.

Mrs. Carewe sat up very straight in her bed.

"The scorpion was the name of the dance that Lola made famous," she declared, a note of wonder in her voice.

"I know that, too," responded Thatcher Colt.

"Was it the scorpion that bit her, Mr. Colt?"

"Yes."

The old eyelids quivered, the aged breath came in spasmodic gasps, and then the body slid down, spilling a half-filled cup of coffee in a

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

It is no easy task to turn history upside down, reverse the course of great national events and finally reassemble the disarrangement into good American drama. An imaginative bit of play writing is Arthur Goodman's "If Booth Had Missed"—a speculation for which there is no return, except in the plaudits of those who can feel its grimness and be stirred by its action. In this respect Mr. Goodman succeeds admirably; the Saturday night audience at the Shubert made this clear from the start. With all its conjecture, "If Booth Had Missed" is impressive, heart tugging drama.

The dramatist has undertaken to reserve for Lincoln two years of conflict with his own Republican party leaders—that conflict into which Andrew Johnson was embroiled soon after the assassin's bullet had made him president. With considerable discretion the author holds firmly to the events of the hour; it is only Lincoln that is a stranger to them. Taking the story of reconstruction as it ran during the two years following Appomattox, you have only to consult the records and then substitute Lincoln for Johnson. The same characters, with the same motives, stalk the stage. The Republican radicals demand punishment for the South, and Lincoln stands in the way, just as Andrew Johnson did in the true story. The impeachment follows and Lincoln is saved by the same single vote that kept Johnson in office to the end of his term.

Such liberties as Mr. Goodman indulges in are plainly in the interest of good theater. After Lincoln has been kept alive for two years, disposal of him is necessary if the play is to end. And so it is left to a fiery Southern editor to complete the job at which, in Mr. Goodman's dream, Booth had failed. To many of us the characters are more interesting than the events. They carry us back to school days, when we thought that history was dull, and that none of these men, except possibly Lincoln and Grant, was worth a second thought. The Lincoln of Daniel Poole is an extraordinary example of the actor's art. He is the Great Emancipator of the text books; a figure that might step down in bronze from his pedestal in the Lincoln Memorial and walk calmly through its long corridor.

With General Grant, the author has taken many liberties. He is revealed as a smoking, drinking soldier, and there the historic characterization stops. Here you find him a secret enemy of Lincoln, when as a matter of truth he was always his friend; here you find him coarse and profane, and Grant was never profane. Again it is the dramatist transposing the reconstruction agonies of Johnson to Lincoln. Grant did nurse a presidential bee at that time, and it is also true that he disliked Johnson. Aubrey Beattie portrays Grant according to all accepted notions until he introduces profanity. The Thaddeus Stevens of John Nicholson is something to remember; a merciless radical to the core and played to the hilt.

What a wealth of character! Our own Ben Butler, crafty and controversial, is done by Fred Eric. His one long speech as the manager of the impeachment proceedings should go into the records only as hard labor. Mr. Poole's defense, as Lincoln, is equally extended. Both of them are too long for the comfort of either actor or audience. Royal Dana Tracy's Stanton, next to that of Lincoln, is perhaps the most carefully studied role in respect to the physical picture. Where others make brave efforts to look the men they represent, only Mr. Poole and Mr. Tracy completely succeed.

"If Booth Had Missed" brings only two women into action. Catherine Proctor as Mrs. Lincoln, faithful to tradition, is a scolding spouse, and Charlotte Walker, as Mrs. Jefferson Davis, enjoys one tearful scene in the White House.

As Mr. Goodman can make no vital claim to historical accuracy, it is greatly to his credit that out of his imagination he has contrived a play that holds you with gripping interest. You know he is merely giving flight to feverish imagination, but you swallow it all with fine relish.

Gala Screen and Stage Offerings

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Excellence on stage and an entertaining photoplay are the features of this week's show at the RKO Boston.

The picture is "Hotel Continental," not to be regarded as an attempt to beat "Grand Hotel" to the screen, but as an out-and-out crook drama on its own hook for favor. Direction and cast present the story in attractive fashion. Unity of action and time come in the fact that the plot is unfolded on the night before the hotel is to be razed. It is a time of great gayety, with something of the auld lang syne spirit; and among the merrymakers gather criminals, large and small.

One of the crooks, years before, had cached loot in one of the hotel rooms, and he returns to salvage it as the teeming years pass into oblivion. A lassie attached to a group seeking to reach the hidden fortune, falls in love with the original thief.

The vaudeville is much better than the film fare. The headliner is Johnny Perkins, a mountainous man, fat and jolly, and just bubbling with fun. Perkins is not only a fine comic, but a good singer; and he has the assistance of two classy ones, Ruth Petty, torch song specialist, and a negro lad possessed of a corking tenor voice.

Another sterling turn is that which permits Gloria Foy to share with Sam Critcherson and Walter Lane.

Leaders to See Irish Film

State and city officials will be guests of the Emmett Moore Film Company of Ireland tonight at its premiere showing in Tremont Temple of "Sweet Inniscarra," said to be the first and only talking, singing and dancing picture made on Irish soil.

"Sweet Inniscarra" is based on the romantic love drama of Erin in which the late Chauncey Olcott scored his initial stage success. The film will show 6000 of Ireland's sons and daughters at work and play.

Clive Back in 'Shanghai Marriage'

By HARRIS MORGAN

Back to the town of his long and steady popularity, E. E. Clive returned in triumph to the Wilbur Theater Saturday night, bringing a sprightly new comedy, "Shanghai Marriage," and accompanied by sundry members of his former Copley Players.

This is a gay and engaging comedy, with Mr. Clive in a particularly happy role. In war-torn China, an obliging young Scottish gentleman signs blindly on the dotted line a marriage contract with a girl he has never seen. Object—to save the kidnaped beauty from the fangs of Gen. Feng, who with true Oriental conservatism exempts young matrons from the fate inexorably awaiting young maids.

Mr. Clive as a Scottish laird, including kilts, whiskey and soda, and walrus moustache, was extremely amusing, and received an ovation which he acknowledged in a brief and obviously heartfelt curtain speech. David Tearle, a personable young man, was enjoyable as the proxy husband who insisted upon falling in love with his wife. Harry McNaughton furnished much of the evening's laughter in the role of George, the helpful sailor friend of the young husband, also supposed to be a sailor, but who turned out to the astonishment of the entire cast, to be a Scottish gentleman as good as any of them.

Musical Treat at Symphony

By MOSES SMITH

The performance of the Bach B minor Mass at yesterday's Pension Fund Concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Symphony Hall recalled in all essential features the two renderings of the two-century old work which crowned last year's Bach Festival.

The work was thrillingly played and sung yesterday—whether as well as last year it is futile to attempt to recall. The same forces were employed; the symphony orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, Amy Evans, soprano; Margaret Matzenauer, contralto; Richard Crooks, tenor, and Fraser Gange, baritone. There were also the sensitive instrumental soloists taken from the orchestra, and over and above all the magnetic and inspiring, the brilliantly imaginative and zealous conductor, Serge Koussevitzky.

Beside the miracle he wrought in reproducing Bach's gigantic musical structure objections to slight details in interpretation dwindle into insignificance. The actual performance must have been due as much to his genius as to the painstaking preparation under Dr. Archibald T. Davison and G. Wallace Woodworth.

"Peaches" at Two Theaters

Manager Al Somerby announces that "Peaches" Browning will be his headliner for the week beginning today, at both the Old Howard, and the Bowdoin Square Theaters. In addition the Howard has a big bill of vaudeville, burlesque and movies; while the Bowdoin has seven stage acts, and these films: "Lady With a Past," starring Constance Bennett, and William Collier, Jr., in "Soul of the Slums."

Peaches Browning

The vaudeville includes Ann Howe and Company, Night and Gale, Saul Brilliant & Company, Jimmy Downing, master of ceremonies; the Belton Brothers, and Nelson and Crane.

Wednesday is cabaret night with extra acts.

Among the guests were Albert Goodman of New York City; Major Patrick Healey of the State department of public safety; John Casey, city censor and J. J. McGuinness.

Jeanne Sorel, Hollywood Recruit, Given Part in Columbia's 'Faith'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Los Angeles, March 28—There is a new girl in Hollywood. Her name is Jeanne Woolins but you must call her Jeanne Sorel, that's her new name. I don't suppose anyone gave Cecile Sorel, the great French actress, a thought when she was renamed? Miss Woolins is a Russian beauty, born in Alexandria, Egypt, and she has already gotten herself a job.

Louella O. Parsons

She was discovered by Samuel Goldwyn when she appeared at the Capitol Theater in New York and signed on a contract. She hadn't been here a day before she was borrowed by Columbia for a part in "Faith," the Giannini bank epic now being made at that studio.

I haven't seen Miss Woolins but she is said to have plenty of allure. She must have something to get a job without ever having played a part in a Hollywood picture. Same way when we think of the girls who have worked for years and learned their art, it seems all wrong to bring a stranger in and try to make a star of her overnight.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

The Jack Dempsey-Dorothy Dell romance is sunning itself with the ring's exchamp turning softly enough to gift the lass with a diamond bracelet which her mama insisted she must return. The fever, too, has caught Arto DeMergian, the theatrical photographer, and Gypsy Markoff, the sparkling-eyed accordion gal, although we seem to recall vaguely that Gypsy insisted not so long ago the big pang of her heart was a Russian musician and there was even some hint that they had been secretly merged. Emmita Casanova, the Ziegfeld beauty, is desperately ill in Washington and perturbed about a report which has no foundation and which will trust other columnists will not credit. Doris Andrese, the Vanities lovely, fully recovered from her recent operation, now has her head in the clouds, having ironed out her difference with Wilbur Rose, former local newspaperman. If Wall Street can forget the ticker for a few seconds, it might congratulate Dominick O'Donnell who, within a few weeks, will be introducing the pulchritudinous Claire Tryon as the missus. And now on 14th street, between 3rd and 4th avenues, a dance hall advertising one-half cent a dance. That about beats me.

[illegible]

As if we haven't had enough of it, within a week or so, Congressman Herrick will fill a few dozen pages of the Congressional Record with an attack on Congressman Strovich's attack on the critics and columnists. Jean Scott, the backgammon expert, is ailing and, by the way, have you heard that ditty about three of us snoops, Broadway scribblers that Deslys and Clarke chant nightly at El Garron? Well, the author is a Britisher named Eddie Pola, and he credits us with wearing $17.50 suits with one pair of pants. Look up that libel law, Leona! What I should have mentioned a paragraph or so before is that the susceptible Bert Taylor and the susceptible Lupe Velez are giving all the indications of having gone for each other in a great big way. Out on the Coast, Clara Bow is finding that her weight just won't melt off and word comes that Ina Claire is definitely through with the movies—or so she says. Poor Billy Gould of N. Y. Amusements is bedded with a pouting appendix.

Boston Cornering the Cauliflower Market

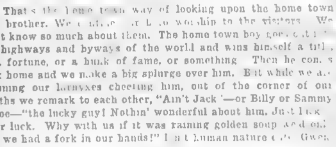
Some of the boys seem to think it strange that Sammy Fuller had to go away from Boston to be appreciated and get ring recognition. That isn't strange. It's according to Hoyle and human nature. Familiarity breeds contempt. Josephine had a much different idea of the great Napoleon than did the rest of the world. It is hard to see the great master in a lad who you saw striving his ring apprenticeship. It took California fans a long time to see anything great in the Dempsey they had seen whipped by fat Willie Meehan. New York [illegible] to accept Gene Tunney. Yet out in [illegible] in the Dakotas they don't [illegible] great fistic [illegible]. And in St. Paul the fans recall the [illegible] they saw the two Petrolle brothers, Billy and Frankie [illegible] knocked out in the same ring and on the same night!

Not so long ago we looked over a batch of German articles on Max Schmeling. The German writers seemed to think the Black Uhlan was taking his life in his hands in getting in the same ring with our terrible Sharkey man. Yet here in Boston you'll find a flock of fistic fans who think when the Big Scrap takes place next June the Squire of Chestnut Hills is going to get his block knocked off by the Teuton Thumper. A fellow, be he prophet or champion, has a tough time getting recognition in his home town, brother.

Here in the Hub we've known Sammy Fuller was a first class, two-fisted little fighting man for quite a spell. A year ago we saw him beat Tony Canzoneri, world's lightweight champion, in an overweight match, and got the idea he probably would repeat in an official duel at the titular poundage. But Bostonians couldn't get unduly excited over the home town boy. They knew too much about him. They were too familiar with him to place any diadem on his head or see that aura of greatness enveloping him. As far as the Canzoneri match was concerned it wasn't so much a matter of Bostonians thinking more of Fuller at it was of thinking less of Canzoneri.

That's the home town way of looking upon the home town boy, brother. We [illegible] worship to the visitors. We don't know so much about them. The home town boy goes out [illegible] the highways and byways of the world and wins himself a title, or a fortune, or a hunk of fame, or something. Then he comes back home and we make a big splurge over him. But while we are straining our larynxes cheering him, out of the corner of our mouths we remark to each other, "Ain't Jack"—or Billy or Sammy or Joe—"the lucky guy! Nothin' wonderful about him. Just luck, sheer luck. Why with us if it was raining golden soup we'd only find we had a fork in our hands!" But human nature [illegible] Gwendolyn?

Here in Boston, brother, we never let ourselves get too excited over the great fighters. We've had too many of 'em. In the old days we had John L. Sullivan, George Dixon, Joe Walcott, Sam Langford, Matty Baldwin, the Gardner brothers, the Glover brothers, the Sullivan brothers, Jimmy Walsh, Al Delmont, Johnny Wilson and so on half through the pages of the blooming Record Book. And look at the gang of two fisted scrappers Boston has today. Why we've about cornered the fistic market. No wonder we aren't throwing as big a fit as New York over Sammy Fuller. Sam is only one of our [illegible] plants [illegible], that's all.



Fuller is knocking on the lightweight championship door. Johnny Indrisano and Lou Brouillard—Worcester is only a suburb of Boston, y'know—are hammering on welterweight and middleweight [illegible]. Al Heuser, the Dutchman who had to come to Bean Town to learn to put up his dukes, is so close to the light heavyweight title that he [illegible] burning its flank. And the whole world knows that Boston is [illegible] burg of the world's two greatest heavyweights, Jack Sharkey and Ernie Schaaf. Boston comes pretty close to being the capital of the Cauliflower Kingdom. Say, World, you'll have to come to Boston if you want to know how to put up yur dukes!

Personally, we have a lot of [illegible] tougher than [illegible] the rest of the gang will [illegible] weight, light heavyweight [illegible] Jackie Kid Fields [illegible] to take [illegible] about [illegible] back to [illegible].

But [illegible] him [illegible] so [illegible] world [illegible] the Winegar Works. If Sammy gets by Billy Petrolle why a whole parcel of folks will think that Tony Canzoneri will be duck soup to Sam—plain duck soup!

STAR OF DIAMOND, LINKS AND RING

The nattily dressed LESLIE BAKER, Easter parading out of the left of the group certainly is a versatile athlete, a Jack of All Sports Trades. At Watertown high school LESLIE BAKER was star pitcher on Watertown high's baseball team and captain as well. He was the school's best golfer and next to Johnny Indrisano shoots the best game of any of the gents of the scrambled ears. He walked off the golf links into boxing and won the national amateur championship as well as the New England in his division. Now he is matched to meet Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion, in the Boston Garden, next Friday night. Fields figures Baker tame prey. But look out Jackie, remember Friday is April 1!

Mr. Boston

By JACK CONWAY

IF GENE TUNNEY will pardon the correction, Honest Tom Heeney did NOT defeat Johnny Risko subsequent to the latter's victory over Jack Sharkey in New York.

INCIDENTALLY, Tunney, who [illegible] in one of his articles that Jack Sharkey scored a knockout over Harry Wills in 13 rounds. If Tunney consulted the record book he would have discovered that Sharkey won on a foul in 13 rounds. Looks as if Tunney [illegible] to hire a good copy reader.

Passing the Puck

—By BILL GRIMES—

Although the Bruins Cubs were [illegible] up a two [illegible] the New Haven [illegible] from the Can-Am [illegible] tomorrow night.

Del Conn, who has never been [illegible] credit for his ability [illegible] against the Eagles [illegible] for another. Conn is [illegible] to the N. H. L., whether he [illegible] to the Bruins or is drafted by another club.

The loss of Pete Lepine will weaken the Flying Frenchmen. Lepine is the best defensive center on Les Canadiens' roster.

Hooley Smith, the Maroons' center ice man, was ripped for two stitches last night when he was hit with a flying puck. Incidentally, of the nine penalties called in the Maroon-Falcon game, six of them were against the Montrealers.

Dutch Heller is sure of being retained by the Rangers, for he came up with the only goal of the third game of the Les Canadiens series. [illegible] a product of the Can-Am [illegible] and therefore it is not [illegible] that he brought home a victory to the Patricians.

According to the Rangers' viewpoint, they defeated Les Canadiens 5 to 2 in the second game of their series. The Rangers protested against Armand Mondou's third period goal and they yelled murder when Bill Stewart refused to allow one by Bill Cook in the overtime period.

Apparently the officials must have suspected that they were in for a long contest in the Forum on Saturday, for after the third period, they ordered a ten minute intermission.

Despite the announcement from the N. H. L. concerning neutral officials, judges and timers, the regular goal judges were on the job in the Forum. The Mondou goal, which caused considerable excitement happened right in front of the New York scribes, who claim that the puck did not even come close to entering the net to say nothing of hitting the center [illegible] and bouncing out.

Ching Johnson was Aurel Joliat's [illegible] in Montreal. The little [illegible] winger tangled up with Ching time and again and on [illegible] he swung his stick at the Ranger and cut Ching but he did not draw a penalty. Johnson spent most of his time laughing at Aurel, which did not help matters.

After 12 minutes on the first overtime, Ching Johnson stepped into Dunc Munro, and the latter's stick opened up a nasty gash over Bill Cook's eye. Bill was patched up on the ice and resumed play.

Saratoga Camp for Schmeling

Saratoga Springs, March 28—Max Schmeling plans to train here for his title bout with Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight champion, which is slated for June 16 in New York.

This training camp was used by Jack Dempsey for several of the Mauler's most important fights.

BRUINS CUBS ARE EDGED BY EAGLES

By BILL GRIMES

With the exception of the Ranger victory over Les Canadiens, the outcome of the other three playoff games failed to indicate a winner.

The Chicago Blackhawks slipped across a 1 to 0 win over Toronto, the Maroons and Falcons battled to a 1 to 1 tie and the Bruin Cubs trailed the New Haven Eagles 4 to 3.

The Rangers turned in an unexpected win over Les Canadiens. The Flying Frenchmen won the first game of this series but the Rangers came back Saturday night and took a 4 to 3 verdict after 113 minutes and 32 seconds of play.

After a scoreless first period, Dutch Heller worked through the Frenchmen's defense for the only goal of the fracas.

Rangers Favorites to Reach Finals

As a result of their win over Les Canadiens, the Rangers are heavy favored to reach the finals, for in the third game, Pete Lepine broke his leg when he collided with Bill Cook in the third period, while Aurel Joliat, the crafty left winger for the Frenchmen has been hors de combat since Saturday night when he met with a leg injury.

The Maroons are content that they ran true to form when they came out of the first Detroit game with an even break.

Sorrell [illegible] in the first period for the Falcons but [illegible] came up with the equalizer in the next chapter and for the remainder of the [illegible] the teams battled on even terms.

Bruins Cubs Show Fight Against Eagles

The Bruins Cubs covered themselves with glory when they finished only one goal in arrears of the New Haven Eagles. The Cubs broke away to a flying start when Happy Harnott and Red Conn scored early in the first period but the Eagles came back with four [illegible]. Then Joe Jerwa and Del Conn teamed up for the Cubs' [illegible].

All of the clubs that played last night will be [illegible] on the [illegible]. The Rangers should be [illegible] due to the fact that Pete Lepine and Aurel Joliat are out of competition [illegible] of the Hawks [illegible] should swamp the Falcons in Montreal.

LUTZE TO BE FIT FOR BROWNING

Nick Lutze has started training for his mat bout with Jim Browning which will be the semifinal to the [illegible] George world's championship tussle at the Arena a week from Thursday night.

It will be Lutze's first appearance in this city since he was called to Chicago by the death of his father. Lutze only recently returned to the wrestling game.

Nick always keeps himself in good physical condition and does not expect to experience any difficulty in getting into perfect shape for the tussel with Browning.

BRAVES CLASH WITH MACKMEN

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 28.—Boston's Braves hustle into their final week of Southern training today, journeying to Fort Myers for an exhibition battle with Connie Mack's Athletics.

PERSONALITIES ON THE AIR

It must be invention season. Another chap has come forth with a gadget that will mute the advertising, as it interrupts the musical program.

So, and but, once again ... the talk-muter will never replace the hand, that part of the body which, with one heave can not only mute but eternally silence the set and all its blurb.

Bill Schudt, CBS television boss, says that a goodly portion of the artists who are televised for the first time, place their backs to the apparatus, rather than their faces.

A ROGUE TO CATCH

... two weeks for ... one rogue can find another.—Emil Carlson, Rockport.

COL. WHAT'S-HIS-NAME

"I think if Norman What's-his-name were muzzled they might progress faster. I'm tired of reading his oft-repeated remark, 'The information supplied by so-and-so has been checked and found to be of no importance.' If he wants important information why does he leave it to newspaper men to dig up ALL the clues?"—I. M. Reed, 91 Norway st., Back Bay.

HANDED OUT

"My opinion is that it was an inside job and that the baby was handed out by a servant. Gangsters would not go to work that early in the evening."—Mrs. G. B. Hudson.

RUBBER BOOTS

"There was little mud in the nursery or on the ladder because the kidnaper wore rubber boots and stepped out of them before he entered the house."—J. H. R., Lowell.

AN ACCIDENT

"My theory (and apparently nobody else holds it) is that the kidnaper was just an ordinary house thief who seized upon sudden opportunity. I do think he was mad and that the baby is dead."—ABC.

LADDER HANDED OUT

"The ladder was handed out to the kidnaper. Capone planned it all and placed a friend of the gang inside."—William Green, 611 Washington st., Quincy.

INSIDE JOB

"An inside job, the dog, the unlocked window, the first Tuesday night in the house."—Lewis Kornfeld, Jr., Brookline.

MEDICAL STUDENTS

"My theory is the baby was stolen by some medical students but they had inside aid."—J. C. V., Boston.

CAPONE ONCE MORE

"I think it is Capone's planning and carried out for his benefit. It certainly doesn't look like a kidnaping for ransom ..."—... Passer, West Gloucester.

THE COLD

"Better continue questioning the servants. I know if my baby had a heavy cold, I would never leave it from 7.30 until 10 o'clock without looking in, even if he were 10 years older."—Mrs. E. A. M., Rockland.

Marry-Go-Round

BEAUTIFUL-AND-DUMB NOW APPLIED TO MEN

By HELEN ROWLAND

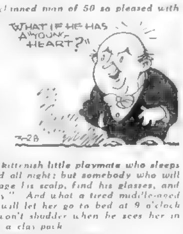
"BEAUTIFUL-BUT-DUMB" ...

Now, all that has changed with the arrival of the gigolo, and it has become apparent that there are actually women who prefer their men beautiful-but dumb

And a brainy, brilliant, successful woman has always seemed to prefer to marry something she could "mother," rather than a mental giant who might try to boss and patronize her.

But, alas, such matings seldom work out happily, when a brave, strong, capable woman takes a flower of masculine beauty to her heart. I have seen some beautiful but dumb wives who made their husbands happy, but I have never seen a beautiful but dumb husband who was not just excess baggage.

And why is a rotund, triple-chinned man of 50 so pleased with himself when he has puffed around the dance-floor a few times with a wisp of a flapper, who winks at her Boy Friend over his shoulder?



What a man with high blood-pressure, tired nerves and a high-powered job needs is not a kittenish little playmate who sleeps all day and wants to play around all night; but somebody who will rub his back, fix his bath, massage his scalp, find his glasses, and at the same time call him "Bossy." And what a tired middle-aged woman needs is somebody who will let her go to bed at 9 o'clock and get her beauty sleep, and won't shudder when he sees her in patent wavers, a chin strap and a clay pack.

MURDER OF THE NIGHT CLUB LADY

Mrs. Carewe on Grill Again

"She's really in a bad way, Mr. Colt," murmured Dorothy Fox as she hastened to the bedside. "She told me that she has had heart trouble for years. I really think she should have a doctor."

"But her doctor is dead," said Fletcher Colt. "See that she is watched over by a department physician for the time being. Will you come back tonight, Miss Fox?"

"Yes, sir."

"Miss Fox, do you remember when you, Lola and Mrs. Carewe were in this room last night—laughing?"

"Oh, yes, Mr. Colt."

"What were you laughing about?"

"Just at my chatter. I was telling them some of the experiences I have had when Mrs. Carewe helped her to undress. I was trying to cheer up Lola."

"Did Lola ask for the bathrobe herself? Think carefully now."

"Yes, she did."

"Did you get it for her?"

"Yes, out of that closet over there."

"And did you button it on her?"

"Her mother did. Lola's hands were trembling so that she could not do much for herself."

...

"Was there any conversation about that bathrobe?"

...

"I seem to remember that there was. Now — what could it have been? It was something about the bathrobe being an old one. Mr. Rowland had called here early last night and seen Lola in it. And he had offered to buy it from her. All this was before they even left the house. Lola laughed about how much fun they had over it. He offered to buy her a new one if she would give him her old one. And she refused. It seemed it was an old argument between them. Lola had some reason of her own for holding on to that old bathrobe. I gather it was a present from some old nurse — over in Paris, I figure. Anyway, Vincent Rowland did seize the bathrobe and hide it and Lola refused to leave with him until it was found again. I think, Mr. Colt, that was all there was about the bathrobe."

"I think," replied Fletcher Colt, "that is quite enough. Report here for duty at seven tonight and thanks!"

The case against Vincent Rowland seems to be more convincing at every turn ... "It seems to me our next step is to face him with what we've got."

Put to this ...

I am not at all sure that is our wisest course ... I know Vincent Rowland. I know the ... quality of his mind ... It is my object not to give him that opportunity. You see we haven't a case against Rowland yet."

"But, my God, Thatcher—his handling of the bathrobe is enough ..."

"By the time we get before the jury the case will be complete ..."

UNREST OVER CONGRESS LIKELY TO PASS

By B. C. FORBES

WHO KILLED cock robin?
"Congress" shouts Wall Street.

In one week Congress destroyed financial faith. It knocked stocks on the head. It unsettled bonds. Worse still, it hurt the market price of almost all commodities, including principal farm crops.

Congress blasted the hopefulness which its earlier constructive action had begun to inspire. Especially among bankers. Defeat of the sales tax incited apprehension over budget balancing. Bonus demands disturbed.

Glass Bank Bill Doomed

It was logical that the irresponsible [illegible] of Congress should flabbergast finance and the whole country. It was logical that all markets should suffer declines.

But, after all, what may be reasonably expected to happen?

The Glass bank bill, [illegible] ace by bankers, is little likely to be made law. Either it will be shelved promptly or smothered later.

Having demonstrated their power to defy their leaders, rebellious representatives are likely to realize, on second thought, that continued reckless obstruction will court their own doom. The chances all are that ways and means will be adopted to balance the budget, probably by resorting largely to the treasury's original recommendations.

Clamor for payment of two billion dollars more cash to ex-soldiers, now stirring uneasiness, is hardly likely to attain its objective in view of the nation's financial state.

R. F. C. a Tower of Strength

[illegible] created nervous [illegible]

Developments in other directions still are mixed.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation is proving a tower of strength, a veritable "refuge in times of trouble." President Hoover has frankly proclaimed himself in favor of extending all assistance necessary to prevent further financial trouble among our railroads, banks or other interests eligible for governmental assistance.

Bank failures are fewer even than in normal times. Hoarded money is reappearing in volume. Interest rates tend downwards. Gold shipments are no longer a factor. The Federal Reserve is actively aiding easier money.

Big Jump in Stock Sales

Very quietly there has been going on absorption of stocks by the public. Statistics reveal the astounding increase of approximately fifty per cent in stockholders of large corporations since the end of 1929. As brokers' loans have fallen more than ninety per cent, obviously buyers have been paying cash in full. This untrumpeted disclosure is extraordinarily significant.

After Friday, brokers will not be permitted to lend stocks to bears without written permission from customers. Short-selling will not cease, but it should be sharply curtailed. [illegible] possibility.

Easter Trade Disappointing

Unfortunately, Easter trade disappointed expectations. Clear evidence of business or industrial expansion is still lacking. Nor have commodity prices turned definitely upwards. Railway traffic, bank clearings, steel production, automobile sales, building operations continue to drag.

However, reports are beginning to come to hand of considerable [illegible] to bring [illegible]

GLASS BILL HIT BY BIG BANKER

[illegible]

Hecht said the bill which is designed to prevent use of Federal Reserve facilities for stock market speculation, would "undoubtedly destroy most, if not all, the good accomplished" by recent reconstruction moves "and lead to the deflation of securities and increased restriction on credit at a time when just the opposite is needed."

—SPECTATOR— Says:

With more than two weeks of almost uninterrupted decline behind it, even the bearishly inclined admit that the market has worked into a position for at least a technical rally. Wall Street's reaction to the Washington tax deadlock and the unbalanced budget peril was clearly apparent and stocks will be under a heavy handicap until the "All's clear along the Potomac" flag waves again.

Rail Developments

There also were rumors of favorable railroad developments brewing in Washington . . . Carrier stocks now are only about a point above their bear market low and sentiment would be further disturbed if they went through . . . An interesting analysis that Phelps Dodge is currently selling only 50 cents a share above its net quick assets draws attention to the other copper stocks, most of which are now available at record low levels.

There was a good deal of [illegible] that Wednesday's car loadings report would show another gain.

Metal Companies

Other than Anaconda, which is involved in heavy bank loans, leading metal companies are generally selling at what are admittedly attractive prices . . . Yet even well-posted copper men declare that there is no reason at all right now for doing anything in the metal shares.

The oils have the news with [illegible] do better once the market shows signs of stability . . . Current estimates are that increase in crude prices will mean nearly $1 a share to Standard Oil of New Jersey in inventory mark-ups . . . Informed scale buying is reported in Johns Manville.

His election at this time does not indicate Container is planning any additional financing, according to President Walter P. Paepcke.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

WASHINGTON tax muddle continued to cause nervousness in trading on the New York Stock Exchange today. Selling dried up after the first hour and there was some quick profit-taking by the bears. Metals were again conspicuously heavy.

Ford Steel Buying Would Bring Change

Ford is understood still to be encountering difficulties, daily production last week ranging between 50 and 100 units. Production tonnage is reported to have been released by Ford for stainless steel and a few other items, and there seems to be no question that more important tonnage is close at hand. Large releases of sheets and strips seem a certainty early this week. As stated last week, a Ford steel buy would immediately change the steel production situation," says Steel today.

Electric Auto-Lite, which a while ago successfully invaded the electric clock field with an electric timepiece retailing for a dollar or less, is now coming into the market with an electric alarm clock of [illegible] model to retail for [illegible]

Many Big Companies Seeking Diversity

Perhaps modeling after successful drug chains, many of the big companies are seeking diversity of products with more zeal than ever before. Even the retail chains are trying new things. Dairy companies like tobacco retailers, are putting in candy lines. First National has again marketed Easter lilies, etc.

Loose-Wiles Joins Makers of "Chips"

Aggressive Loose-Wiles has joined the makers of potato chips. [illegible] proven a very profitable field for others in the past. Management has never been content with a standstill policy, which in part accounts for its noteworthy success.

Oils Are Favored in Some Circles

[illegible] companies are specially favored in some circles today, having been thrown into the spotlight by the marking up of "crude" to around the dollar level in the Mid-Continent field. Standard Oil of New Jersey remains a big favorite.

Bank Stocks Wait on Dividend Changes

The bank stocks have lately been waiting on dividend changes. With cutting dividend rates in widespread favor, reductions taking place even where the old dividends have been better than earned, have occasioned no surprise in well-informed circles. Bank stocks have nearly always in the past sold on a basis of low dividend yields, with price ascensions a main incentive for long-pull buying.

California Standard Seen as Attractive

California Standard is seen as attractive by some long-pull investors. These have back in their minds the possibility of a nearing merger movement.

Demand Seen for Government Bonds

Action of government bonds has been encouraging the past week. A number of new high records for the year were established reflecting a steady demand from important investors and banking institutions. It has been the firmness in the government issues which gave the general bond market a good tone on numerous occasions recently.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES ARE MOVED LOWER

Stocks were moved to lower levels in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Changes ranged from fractions to 4 points or more. Edison Electric was weak and sold at a new low for the year on a recession of 4 points.

New England Telephone was at a new low for the year at 98, at which price it was down 3 points from its previous close, and then rallied to make up the early loss.

American Telephone was down a fraction while Utility Equity preferred showed a fractional gain. Stone & Webster was strong and recorded a gain of over a point.

Boston & Maine A stamped was off 2 points to a new low and the B stamped was over 4 points lower. Atchison sagged around a point. New Haven slipped back a major fraction. Swift International was down nearly 2 points while fractional declines were shown for United Shoe and Gillette.

Special stockholders meeting of Atlas Plywood Corp. has been called for April 15 to vote on directors' proposal to reduce the authorized stock from 200,000 to 177,740 shares and the outstanding stock from 194,500 to 171,740 shares. In this connection book value of the stock would be written down from $3,439,470 to $1,643,168. As a partial result, a capital surplus of $1,775,187 would be created. This capital surplus represents the exact amount by which directors propose to write down certain capital assets.

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That the financial district has come to the conclusion legislators are determined to undo their constructive steps taken early this year. The action of the markets since the defeat of a sales tax is more than proof the community considered it the only proper step to make. Until the budget is balanced, bears will find it increasingly easy to spread their propaganda.

Market Policy

While the rails snapped their downside resistance, it is not yet time to give up all hope. If the old maxim that one group always fails to follow the lead of the other in breaking into new low ground is ignored, there is the technical fact that a break this only a fraction of a point is in itself no reason to change preconceived market ideas. Dumping of long stock will not be warranted until the Dow Jones rail average closes under 30.25.

In the event the [illegible] does penetrate [illegible] it is most likely [illegible] to sell [illegible] be freely offered. Despite this there is such a lack of necessitous liquidation that it is doubtful a fresh decline will carry very far. Again there will be few organized attempts to drive prices lower. For these reasons the selective position adopted by leading traders is still adhered to.

A Good Bond

The only funded debt of the International Business Machine Company is listed under the title of Computing-Tabulating-Recording Company. The issue carries a 6 per cent coupon and is due in 1941. It is the sole funded obligation. While manufacture and sale of business machines is the chief source of income, rentals of machines and sale of index cards supplies more than half the total income.

These 20-year sinking fund gold 6s are outstanding in the amount of $2,5[illegible],000 and redeemable at 105 and interest for sinking fund only. Because of the rental feature the company does not experience a wide variation of income. Total assets were 17 times funded debt, while earnings covered fixed charges about 45 times. All three features make the issue a favorite with investors.

Boardroom Briefs

Some selling in Union Pacific was based on the theory it would follow Atchison into new low ground . . . Not much to go on but the former usually does follow the latter . . . Because of the difference in the legal interpretation of margin a count [illegible] some brokers to see stock loaned outside New York to the [illegible]. For instance, New York considers it an equity tantamount to ownership.

In Massachusetts this is not so. Here it is simply looked on as an agreement between broker and customer. The latter is not considered to be the owner . . . Therefore, do not be surprised if local houses loan all margin stock freely.

This, of course, dependent on the attitude of the New York Stock Exchange governors, who are the makers of the new rule.

— H. F. F.

Curb Is Unsettled in Dull Trading

New York, March 28. The curb market was somewhat unsettled in dull trading today.

Utilities met early [illegible] pressure but steadied as the weight of offering had been absorbed.

Announcement that Commonwealth Edison now had in hand more than enough cash to meet its July 30 note maturity of $20,000,000, the only piece of financing scheduled for the year, was followed by a stronger market for the stock.

UNITED STATES SMELTING REFINING & MINING COMPANY

The Directors of the United States Smelting Refining and Mining Company have declared a quarterly dividend of 1¾% ([illegible] cents) per share on the Preferred Capital Stock, also a dividend of twenty-five cents ([illegible]) per share on the Common Capital Stock, both payable on April 15, 1932, to stockholders of record at the close of business April 4, 1932.

F. W. BATCHELDER, Treasurer.

LEADERS RALLY, WITH SELLING DRIED UP

New York, March 28—The Washington tax muddle, signalized by the defeat of the sales tax, brought another unsettled stock market in Wall Street today, further weakness in the dollar and a heavy tone to security and commodity markets generally.

Leading stocks were down from 1 to 5 points in the early dealings. Trading was at a heavy pace. An accumulation of week-end selling orders, inspired by the action of the House on the revenue measures, and the threat to a balanced budget, bearing big blocks of stock on the tape.

RALLY IS STAGED

Stocks showed resistance around the lows and recovered a good part of their losses after the first hour, but the undertone was nervous and trading was dull on the advance.

Strength in the New York city tractions, which rose one to 2 points, helped bring about the upturn. The advance in the group followed report that bankers would seek to get the city to raise subway fares here in a drive for added revenues.

Sterling led the rise against the dollar, spurting nearly 4 cents to a new high for the year. French, Swiss and other continental currencies added further gains to Saturday's advance.

Cotton dropped nearly $1 a bale. Wheat was lower despite a fresh increase in the French grain import quota. Other commodities were mixed. The Curb Exchange was unsettled, with prices lower.

Contributing to the nervousness in speculative circles was the proposal of the House insurgents to raise stocks transfer taxes to one-quarter of 1 per cent on regular transactions and double this on short sales.

NEW LOWS RECORDED

Many new lows were established in today's market session. Kreuger & Toll hit a record bottom of 62½ cents a share. Others were U. S. Steel preferred, American Smelting, Anaconda, Auburn and Atchison.

The market turned dull after noon with the list generally lower. American Telephone was an exception, holding around Saturday's close as pressure lifted. U. S. Steel confined its loss to a fraction, despite the trade reviews showing a new decline of more than 1 per cent in the operations for the industry last week.

International Business Machines was the day's weak spot, slumping 5 points following the anti-trust suit started against the company and Remington Rand by the government on Saturday.

Copper stocks were weak without any development to explain the selling and virtually the entire group went to new low levels. Oil stocks showed resistance to the selling, continuing to be aided by the rise in crude prices last week and passage of the tariff by the House.

Bonds showed a dull and nervous tone. Governments were an exception, working higher on buying attributed to switching from other securities due to the tax exempt privilege, reflecting the "soak the rich" movement in the House.

Operations in Dodge Plants Increasing

Detroit, March 28—Operations in Dodge Bros. plants have increased steadily since production of company's 1932 models started. March production has exceeded rate of corresponding period of February, and more than 13,000 men are now on the payrolls of the company, a substantial increase from employment levels of the fall and winter.

The company is controlling operations by the "trend system," which, according to President Keller controls production on basis of five-year sales average for the industry.

William Cooper Proctor, chairman, states in letter to stockholders. Harvester Offers Planters Trade Plan

Chicago, March 28 (AP)—The International Harvester Company has offered wheat, corn and cotton growers who deal with it a new trade plan which in effect guarantees them higher prices for their product than now prevail.

Its officials announced that on all notes for farm machinery maturing in 1932 the company will credit the grower with the difference between the average market quotation for the five-day period preceding and including the date of maturity and a base price of 70 cents a bushel for wheat and 50 cents a bushel for corn at Chicago and 8½ cents a pound of cotton at New Orleans.

Example of how the plan would work out was given by George A. Ranney, vice-president, to meet a note of $420, he said, a grower would have to sell a hypothetical 600 bushels at 70 cents. Should the market price, however, be only 60 cents at maturity and the grower realize only $360, the International Harvester Company would credit him with $60 on the note.

Ranney said the company had faith farm prices would soon improve and was undertaking the guarantee plan to overcome what it believed to be reluctance of farmers to buy machinery because of present low prices.

100,000 Electric Clocks Are Ordered by Wrigley's

Chicago, March 28—The Hammond Clock Company of Canada Ltd., an affiliate of the Hammond Clock Company, has received an order for 100,000 Hammond electric clocks from the William Wrigley, Jr., Company, Ltd., for use throughout Canada. The order will be manufactured at the Toronto, Ont., plant of the Hammond Clock Company.

Canadian purchase is supplementary to the order for 1,000,000 electric clocks which the William Wrigley, Jr., Company recently placed with the Hammond Clock Company for delivery from its Chicago factory, for use by the Wrigley company throughout the United States.

Commenting upon the recent large orders which have been received from the William Wrigley, Jr., Company, F. H. Redmond, vice-president and general manager of the Hammond Clock Company, stated that these were serving to take up the slack in production at this season of the year. Plants of the Hammond Clock Company have been running actively to fill shipping demand on the Wrigley order, in addition to the steady demand for the company's bichronous clocks.

Most of Markets Abroad Closed

New York, March 28 (AP)—Most of the European security and commodity markets continued to remain closed today in observance of the Easter holiday. They will reopen tomorrow morning.

Silver Stockholders Organize

New York, March 28 (AP)—An independent preferred stockholders' committee of Isaac Silver Brothers Company, Inc., has been formed, comprising John G. Rolph, Morris Voss and Arthur I. Judell. The committee is not asking for the deposit of any stock. The company is in receivership.

Study of How Far Rich Can Avoid Taxes Is Given

New York, March 28 (AP)—How far can the man with a large income go in avoiding federal income taxes by putting his money into tax exempt securities.

Those who want to "soak the rich" say he can't go very far; those who oppose extra high taxes insist such levies would make a lot of income flee into exempt securities to the detriment of business enterprise.

There is more than $25,000,000,000 in securities which cannot be taxed for income by the federal government. The largest part of these is $17,000,000,000 in state, county and municipal bonds which cannot be taxed at Washington, on the theory that such taxation presumes the right of the government to tax states and other political subdivisions in other ways—even out of existence.

There also are about $3,500,000,000 in short term government securities; about $1,300,000,000 in Liberty 3½s; about $200,000,000 in bonds of our territories; about $2,500,000,000 in the bonds of the Federal and joint land banks—or a total of about $25,000,000,000. To this total should be added certain other government bonds which are tax exempt up to $5000, and thereafter subject to surtaxes.

Opponents of high rates say super taxes would drive holders of industrial and other taxable securities into tax exempt bonds, unless the taxable bonds pay a very high rate of interest. This requisite high rate presumably would tend to discourage business from borrowing needed money, the opponents say.

They further hold high rates would stimulate the issuance of more tax exempt securities at a time when political subdivisions are already too heavily in debt.

Proponents insist the tax exempt securities are now held by those who wish to avoid the existing rates, and that such holdings could not be increased enough to effect tax receipts materially. They say there is plenty of cheap credit available to a business that needs a sound loan; that it is unlikely enough new tax exempt securities would be issued to dry up credit sources.

As for bonds now in existence, proponents hold prices of tax exempts and other bonds would tend to equalize on the basis of the tax rate. That is, an industrial bond would yield a higher rate to make up for the deduction from its interest income that might have to go for income taxes; while the prices of governments would tend to increase for the contrary reason.

Opponents insist that while this equalizing process might be effective in the lower income brackets, it would not be effective in the high brackets from which, particularly, much of the additional tax receipts are sought.

City Ice to Amend Certain Articles

Stockholders of City Ice & Fuel Co. at a special meeting April 7 will vote on an amendment to the articles of incorporation reading "subject to all applicable provisions of law, said corporation may at any time and from time to time when authorized by the board of directors, purchase its common shares upon such terms as the board shall deem proper." The annual meeting of stockholders also will be held on the same date.

Best Earnings Are Made by Utilities

New annual earnings reports received during the past week have brought the aggregate of comparable data to 1418 companies, says the Standard Statistics Co. Combined net income of these units in 1931 amounted to $1,587,384,000, as compared with $2,803,231,000 in 1930, a declined of 43.4 per cent.

Most favorable earnings performance occurred in the utilities group, aggregate net of $866,908,000 having registered a reduction from 1930 of only 66.5 per cent. Industrial earnings amounted to $625,716,000, a decline of 56.9 per cent, while railroads, with combined net of $94,760,000, showed a drop of 77.7 per cent.

More Freight Cars in Need of Repairs

Class I railroads on March 1 had 206,461 freight cars in need of repair, or 9.8 per cent of the number on line, according to the car service division of the American Railway Association.

This was an increase of 10,999 cars above the number in need of repair on February 1, at which time there were 195,462, or 9 per cent.

Deposits of Hoe Co. Securities Urged

SIGN OF SPRING

(Classified Ad in The New Republic)

Young man of 24, now beginning second year as instructor in English at university, wishes to desert this profession which, with its daily reading of fiscoid themes, its pernicious sealing down of the teacher's thought to that of his poorest student, and the absence of even outlined subtlety in the character and conversation of his colleagues, seems to effect a regress of his ardor, privacy and talent, until it finally renders him one of those opulent and corpulent young M. A.'s with fat heads. The applicant has published short fiction, been reprinted in O'Brien's, and recently finished a novel. Any job, even vaguely requiring intelligence and discrimination, will be appreciated, especially one that requires an ability to write lucid and persuasive English. Address: Box 628, New Republic.

This is the land of liberty,
Our fathers died to make us free,
We think and do just as we please,
Although we mustn't smile in sneeze,
We're sons of fathers, brave and proud,
However, we cannot laugh out loud,
Because, you see, it might violate
Section Nine, Volume Eighty-eight
Of the laws conceived and written by
Some cold, stern goof with a mackerel eye.
It must be awful across the sea
Where people cannot do as they please,
Except to sing and laugh and live
And fill the cup with beer and wine
Without a fear that they'll violate

Is Russia Getting Ready?

YOU Answer That Question

RUSSIAN WORKERS TAUGHT THE USE OF GAS MASKS IN WARTIME

Russians have their little defects, and our "best minds" of high finance point them out frequently.

They may, as high finance devoutly hopes, be headed for financial ruin, political chaos and the complete collapse of their Five-Year Plan. BUT THEY HAVE SOME COMMON SENSE. If you study these pictures, you will know it.

While this country talks about sweet peace and the abolition of cruelty in war, including the use of poison gas, the Russians, more practical, build up their army, which is now the biggest in the world, develop their airplane fighting fleet, and, as these pictures show, get ready for the gas warfare which will come as soon as war comes.

The pictures speak for themselves. They tell you more than a million words could tell you.

At the top, you see ordinary Russian workers, with a military man instructing them in the use of gas helmets, explaining to them that the moment they put their helmets on they can go on with their work and be perfectly safe.

You see, also, a Russian peasant in the fields, taught to protect himself with a gas mask, and to protect his horse. They can continue plowing.

And, finally, you see a strange figure, looking as though he had come from another planet, or from the infernal regions, using a newly invented chemical agency, with which the dreadful effects and dangers of mustard gas can be combated.

You know that mustard gas burns and destroys anybody who comes in contact with it, long after it has been scattered from the clouds or by bombs.

A MAN WITH GAS MASK AND HELMET, USING A CHEMICAL DEVICE TO COUNTERACT THE EFFECTS OF MUSTARD GAS

It is believed that this device, used by the Russians, will do away with the deadly after-effects of the gas.

This is all "very horrible," and "Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn."

The Russian Government says: "That may be so, but we don't intend to have the Russians included among those who mourn."

Far be it from us to praise anything Russian in this good nation that shudders at the mere word "Communism," and refuses to admit Russia's right to select her own government.

Nevertheless, we DO SAY—and if that be treason, make what you can of it—that it might be a good thing for the United States to interest itself in the protection of Americans, not only against mustard gas, but against gangsters, criminals, bootlegging and prohibition, as earnestly as the Russian Government interests itself in its own people.

Congress, Sharp Thorn in the Side of Business

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser

The chaotic spirit in the House of Representatives which voted down the mild manufacturers' sales tax marks a dark period in the history of the Republic.

When the country, above all else, needs expert social engineering to relieve the depression it gets ill-conceived legislation by ignorant emotionalists.

Unfortunately, candor compels recognition of the fact that the breakdown of orderly leadership in Congress has added to the vicious deflationary forces making for a continuation of hard times and unemployment.

The so-called progressive bloc REVIVES THE SPIRIT OF THE KNOW-NOTHING PARTY which flourished before the Civil War.

When revenue is sorely needed this band of semi-organized ignoramuses talks loosely about "soaking the rich."

Unless the sober common sense of the American people emphatically rebukes these exhibitionists in Congress, the incomparable credit of the United States is indeed in UNSAFE hands.

Like spoiled children, the House voted against the modified manufacturers' sales tax without suggesting any workable alternative source of necessary public revenue.

If the new bloc really wants to aid the larger public, instead of to mislead it with fallacious economic doctrine, let it turn to competent authorities for sound advice.

The bungling of a sound tax bill upsets confidence and deepens the depression.

It will be more harmful to the 8,000,000 unemployed and to the more or less pauperized farmers than to the rich against whom the campaign was nominally directed.

Believing that principles of mathematics cannot be repealed by Act of Congress, the Hearst newspapers still emphatically hold to the view that the sales tax offers a workable and scientific source of revenue.

By following the leadership of folly and ignorance the House of Representatives unfortunately has joined the forces of mismanagement which keep prosperity from us.

The only issue is whether Congress will continue to remain a thorn in the side of business until discharged by the electorate.

Only a sudden awakening and a program of constructive legislation can mitigate the damage already done.

The Vanishing Pioneers

The frontier, as the historians say, has vanished, and the waste spaces of our empire are conquered. Glamour and the last vestiges of heroism have been stripped from the commuter in New York.

Coffee and sinkers are served to the once hardy souls who navigate hither and homeward on the Staten Island and Hudson ferryboats. A railroad with terminal in Jersey City now offers tickets to its patrons with taxi privileges to and from home.

Is the commuters' life becoming too easy? They are now shielded from buffetings in the subway. Their moral fibre is no longer toughened by having to go without breakfast. If this pampering keeps up they will soon become effete and indistinguishable from New Yorkers.

New York Day by Day

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, March 28—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up feasting on a Kentucky black ham from Mrs. Sydney Carey in Lexington and abroad meeting the lustrous-eyed Mrs. Frank Craven and also the engaging Billie Dove, whom I used to ballyhoo for the old Midnight Frolics.

Comes a flood of epistolary rebukes and deservedly for "I" instead of "me" in this diary, which Lord help me, I scrivened in a careless moment. So to work with high new resolves. Later to Ruff Cobb Brody's, meeting Margaret Case Morgan, Jock Harriman, Ina Hill, the Joe Mullins, Col. Hartfield and the George Ormsbys.

In the evening we to Katherine Brush's for dinner and Dick Berlin and Ann Watkins came, too. Nor have I ever seen such vaulted expanse of living room and stiffly but beautifully modern, too. Later talking to Katherine's successful young husband, Mr. Winan, and home, reading Ed Sullivan's grand brochure on Benedict Arnold.

On Manhattan's lower tip one comes suddenly upon a miniature slice of old world. A stone's throw from J. P. Morgan's in a Levantine quarter—a tumble of three and four-storied brick structures, reeking with odors of Oriental food shops. Wives in doorways offer a buxom tranquillity and the men. Greeks, Armenians and Minor Asians, a penumbra of swarthy faces, fierce mustachios and brass ear rings.

* * *

Arthur Moss returned to New York with his bride, Eve Marvel, after 11 years of self exile in Paris—spent mostly in the neighborhood of the Dome and Rotonde where the boulevard Raspail cuts through Montparnasse. Moss, dapper, thin mustached and ultra Bohemian, founded the Quill in Greenwich Village years ago. Accustomed to lingering over meals, he was bewildered by modern New York's hit-and-run manner and rigid mechanical life. He missed Sleepy Moquin's, the dull-timbered Wurzburger tap room of Luchow's and other haunts, and deserted in a few days with a stinging nostalgia for the sidewalk cafes and leisurely plod of a strangely self-controlled nation.

Count Von Luckner, famed German sea raider, with one side of his evening coat a-drip with some 50 medals, continued a prize bloom at dinner parties this winter. He combines a routine of magic with feats of strength that served to detour talk from the usual poverty topic. He tears two telephone books in twain with a single munch, doubles a half dollar between thumb and forefinger and such. Among tricky triumphs is to borrow a lady's ring, perform an evanishment, then ask the owner to select a flower from the table decorations. She finds the ring encircling it. Awk!

The Count's favorite American hero is Buffalo Bill. As a boy he followed exploits of the plainsman. In early manhood he shipped on a cattleboat to America and headed for Denver, where Col. Cody had headquarters. Oddly, Cody was touring Europe and by further coincidence dining with Count Luckner's father near Cologne on the day the son reacher Denver.

And Victor Moore tells of a gent brimming with speakeasy syrup going home late and finding two escaped zebras from the Bronx zoo in his parlor. He merely glanced at them and went to bed. Couldn't fool him. No sir!

A feature of gay, if any, cafes this Spring is the monocled woman, invariably a manish creature craving attention. One of the dirty stay-outs reports four at Reuben's the other dawn. One carried a swagger stick, tipped with crystal and puffed a midget pipe. No wonder the rioting was begun.

De Segurola, straddling a high one at the Met one night, heard the plink of his monocle as it slipped from its mooring. He substituted another with superb nonchalance without a quaver of his note. A gallery wag cried out: "Tomorrow night he wiggles his ears! And souvenirs for every kiddie."

Listen, World!

New Snob Racket

IS YOUR cuticle ragged? Are your hands red?

Are you wearing brown this season, instead of green?

Did you serve the wrong crackers with the soup course?

Or mess up an Early American room with a few Louis Quinze knicknacks?

Then prepare to hang your head in shame—or be cut by all the nice people—or maybe even lose your husband! For according to the new Snob Racket, you've put yourself on the spot and must face the consequences.

What's the Snob Racket?

It's a game to make you feel like 30 cents.

And why should anyone make you feel like 30 cents?

So you'll go right out and spend thirty—or three hundred dollars, dearie.

And where does the Snob Racket operate?

In scores of places. In beauty talks, fashion talks, interior decoration talks and domestic hints talks over the air; and in the columns, magazine articles and ads turned out by some writers who have gone Snob Racketeer.

Now mind you, I've nothing against fashion, beauty, interior decoration talks and domestic hints talks. They're great stuff. They're necessary. They are doing an invaluable service for American women.

Any talk on article or ad that teaches a woman how to make herself or her home prettier, daintier, more charming, efficient and well bred is performing big human service.

But on the other hand, any talk or article or ad that makes a woman feel that she is a blighted soul because she must perform her ordinary domestic chores—

That subtly puts the bee on her because she can't afford all the current gimcracks and kickshaws—

That makes her generally dissatisfied, ashamed, self-conscious and rebellious against her lot—

THAT article is not performing a big, human service.

Instead, it becomes a general public nuisance and should be told where to head in.

It's a grand thing to know what's the proper beauty cream or throat gargle; what's the modish gown and shoe and bag for the certain occasion; what is the suitable soup or cheese, chair or bathroom fixtures. And all agencies which encourage the spread of proper information along these lines should be given a great hand.

But it's tommy rot to believe that you're a social failure if you don't know or possess these desirable things. And the Snob Racket which spreads just such tommy rot strikes at all that is wrong and sane in our American tradition.

What made America a regular country for regular people?

Not a bunch of discord darlings who knew all the latest social tricks, but thousands of hard-working men and women who weren't ashamed of red hands or last year's dresses, who set up housekeeping with any old furniture they could find and ate their whole meal, from corn beef through mince pie, with the same fork.

And now Mamselle Gertrude, the trick beauty writer, comes along and tells plain little Mrs. Bill Jones that she's a wash-out because her cuticle is split, or her living room is in the "wrong period."

Aw, baloney!

Gwan, Gert, be your age! Stop talking like a grand duchess. You know darned well you were born in Hoboken, like all the rest of us, and still eat your beans out of a can.

Just Folks

The Laughing Hyena

I heard the caged hyena laugh. It chilled the blood of me,
To get from such a craven beast so wild a shriek of glee.

"What is it that you ridicule?" I asked him there and then,
And fancied that I heard him say: "The boastful race of men.

"I know I am a sullen thing; to viciousness a slave,
Spurred on by hunger there are times I'll rob a human grave.

"The books of men have writ me down as cowardly and base
Because unto the light of day I seldom show my face.

"But still, hyena though I am, to that I'm reconciled!
'Tis only man who ever thinks to steal a brother's child."

No Anglo-Irish War

By Claude G. Bowers

THE ATTITUDE of Ireland, under De Valera, toward the oath of allegiance and land annuities is conspicuous in the headlines, and much has been written about the mobilization of military forces in Ulster in fear of an attack from the Free State. In the Common Mr. Thomas made the mistake the other day of striking a sensational note in announcing the Irish intention, and his colleagues in the government have moderated his tone.

One extreme radical interpreted the government's attitude as meaning war—war between England and Ireland; and no one paid any attention to him. The thing seems absurd, especially under existing conditions. Even more improbable is the talk of armed conflict between Ulster and the Free State. There is nothing startling in De Valera's attitude toward the oath. That has been the position of his party right along. That was the issue in the late election in which he won. Whether he will find it possible to carry out his intention is on the lap of the gods.

De Valera's Theory

Not very long ago De Valera was in the United States.

From his own lips, in answer to a question, and in conversation at a luncheon, I heard his theory as to Ulster's ultimate incorporation in the Free State. I had supposed that he occupied a radical position and was astonished to find my theory wrong. He said that it was a matter that could not be forced, and that time alone would make it possible, and then only through a change in the feeling of Ulster. I cannot quote his exact words, but the substance was this:

"Much depends upon the Free State. Ulster is interested in the advantages of trade. We must build up an industrial life and a business activity in the Free State that will convince Ulster of the commercial advantage of amalgamation. Then Ulster has been told through the generations that with Southern Ireland free to do as it wishes, there would be a suppression or persecution of the Protestants. Nothing of the sort ever has been remotely in contemplation. Of course there is, as there will be, no such policy in the Free State. When time has shown this to be true that fear will be banished."

This impressed me at the time as the attitude of a statesman of foresight. Nothing I have seen from De Valera in the meanwhile has indicated any departure from this plan.

Not Much Probability of War

De Valera, in case or war with England, would have not only England to battle, but also the party of Cosgrave, which is a rather powerful opposition of very respectable numbers. Most of the members of the Cosgrave party were once among the followers of De Valera. Many of them were on the firing line at the time of the rising of Easter Week in 1916. The split came later. It persists. There has always been a pro-English element in Ireland which has always been against De Valera; but now there is a powerful pro-Irish element which is satisfied, for time at least, with the settlement, which is also against him. With England against him, with Ulster against him, almost half of the people of the Free State, supporting Cosgrave, against him, he is hardly in position to take extreme measures with the view to sustaining them by force.

So there is not much probability of war.

We Are Concerned With the American Famine

In the old days the prospect of anything of the sort would have caused no end of excitement in America. The Irish here, and the men of Irish blood, were a unit then. The greater portion of the Americans without Irish blood were militantly pro-Irish.

In the far-off days when Parnell and Davitt came, and even later, until the World War, when others came here, they were received with fervor. Home Rule was an American issue. Everyone was demanding the restoration of the Irish Parliament at least. With the granting of the Parliament much of the fervor here died down.

Twenty years ago St. Patrick's Day speakers talked about the fight in Ireland and moved crowds to frenzy; but we do not hear these speeches now. Instead we hear talks on the Irish as a race and particularly on the Irish accomplishments in America, which have been impressive.

Aside from the merits or demerits of De Valera's present demands, there are conditions in the world today that divert attention elsewhere. We are concerned just now with the American famine. The present state of this country and the world is not auspicious for the fight De Valera has invited.
